AN-ADJOURNED CASE CONCLUDED.

TAMPERING FRUSTRATES A RECENT TEST.

DEFENDANT FINED.

The adjourned case, in which a Chinese named Leung Sui-po, of 14, Star Street, was charged by Mr. L. R. Andrews, Assistant Crown Solicitor, with having in his possession an unlicensed crystal wireless set, was heard by Mr. Lindell this morning, the defendant being convicted and fined $25.

The defendant related a long story of the set being given as a present to his six-year-old son who had erected it, and that he did not know anything about it.

At the last hearing of the case, Mr. Waterton, Inspector of Wireless and Telephones, was asked to test the set again.

Aerial Tampered With.

Mr. Andrews said this morning that, when the set was tested, it was found that strong Morse signals sent out locally could be heard weakly. The set was seized on July 10th, and as the case was adjourned, they had reason to believe that the aerial had been tampered with, and thus the object of the test had been partly frustrated.

Mr. Waterton said that he carried out the test and found the set to be in perfect working order, when he tested it with the aid of a pair of cheap telephones, in his own house, but when he took the set to the house of the defendant and tested it there, he heard only strong Morse signals from a local transmitting station, but no musical programmes.

Signals Picked Up.

He went up on the roof to see if the aerial had been connected to any other object, and found one of the wires attached to the chimney. The insulator was also missing from the support strut. From the appearance of the aerial, he presumed it was not many days old. It was raining at the time the test was carried out, and if there was no insulation on the ends of the wire, they would have become directly earthed, and only powerful signals could have come through. The Morse signals, which were of greater strength than ordinary musical signals, were therefore heard. If the terminals of the aerials had been insulated, he would have been able to receive the musical programme.

He asked the defendant whether the aerial had been touched, as the wires appeared to be new, and defendant had replied that the newness of the wires was due to the fact that they had been installed only ten days previously.

No Licence.

Li Chung, assistant to Mr. Waterton, said that he went to the defendant's house on June 14th, to make enquiries. He had seen the aerial on the roof. He asked defendant's wife to produce the licence, but it was not forthcoming. The set was on a table inside the bedroom, and it was connected up by wires.

On July 10th, witness accompanied Mr. Waterton and seized the set. On July 13th, he visited a friend, who lived opposite defendant's house, and noticed that the bamboo aerial had been taken down, but when he visited the house on July 16th, the aerial was up again. On his first visit he had noticed a strut sticking out of the window, preventing the wire from touching the coping, but he saw that it was missing on July 16th, and the wire was touching the coping.

Defendant's Evidence.

The defendant said the set had been presented to his son by a relative, who had taught his son how to work it. The set was erected by his son and some other boys. His son was six years old.

Defendant said he was under the impression that the set was not in working order, as it had

FIRST AIR RACE FATALITY.

GERMAN MECHANIC STRUCK BY PROPELLER.

BRITAIN LEADING.

London, July 22.

The mechanic of the German aeroplane piloted by Von Oertzen in the air race round Europe met with a terrible death at Heston control point today. He sprang out of the machine with the intention of recording the arrival of the plane when he was struck on the head by the propeller and fatally injured.

Meanwhile, the leaders in the race are now between Paris and Spain. Mr. Alan Butler, Mr. S. A. Thorn and the Frenchman, Pinat, arrived at Pau in the Pyrenees during the forenoon. Miss Spooner and Lady Bailey left Paris in the morning.

Many other competitors who delayed yesterday are still completing the English portion of the route. A Spaniard and a Pole have officially retired while another Spaniard is reported missing.

The Spaniard who was formerly reported missing in the air race has now been located at Calais where he spent the day. Fifty-four of the sixty machines which started from Berlin have now passed the Heston control point. Mr. Alan Butler arrived at Madrid in the afternoon. All the other six British competitors arrived at Pau during the course of the afternoon.—Reuter.

STILL NO TRACE OF HOOK.

PRACTICALLY ALL HOPE NOW GIVEN UP.

Rangoon, July 22.

No trace of Hook, who together with a companion called Matthews crashed while attempting a flight from England to Australia, has been found. It seems impossible that he has survived in view of the appalling weather conditions, but searches are being continued.

Matthews took the news of the plight of Hook to a place where help could be obtained after they had wandered for days in the jungle. When the spot at which Hook was left was reached last week by search parties, no trace of the airman could be found, but it was rumoured that Hook was being cared for by natives at a near-by village.—Reuter.

BRIDGE COLLAPSE HORROR.

FRIGHTFUL SEQUEL TO RHINE CELEBRATIONS.

Coblence, July 22.

There was a frightful sequel to the Rhineland evacuation celebrations when an enormous crowd was crossing over a pontoon bridge on the way home after a fireworks display given in honour of President Hindenburg's visit.

The bridge collapsed and a hundred people were thrown into the river. In the darkness many struck the falling bridge and scores perished. So far twenty-four bodies have been recovered.—Reuter.

END OF THE PARLIAMENTARY CONFERENCE.

London, July 22.

The International Parliamentary Conference closed today with a Government farewell banquet at which the Lord Chancellor presided. Six hundred guests were present.

The Conference has been attended by five hundred delegates representing thirty-one Parliaments of the world, and including Prince Tokugawa of Japan. It was the 26th meeting of the Inter-Parliamentary Union.—Reuter.

NEW KUOMINTANG PARTY.

TO FORM A RIVAL GOVERNMENT.

MOST LIKELY CONSERVATIVE IN POLICY.

PEKING ACTIVITY.

Shanghai, July 22.

Concrete suggestions regarding the formation of a new Kuomintang Party, independent from the Nanking Central Kuomintang Executive Committee, and a new Northern Government, with Marshal Yen Hsi-shan as President, have been drawn up by the Kuomintang Leftists co-operating with the politicians of the Western Hill Party and the Peiyang militarists.

August 15th or September 1st have been mentioned as a possible date for the formal inauguration of the New Government and extensive invitations have been extended to Kuomintang politicians all over the country asking them to proceed to Peking to participate in the Kuomintang Plenary Session.

Feng's New Post.

For many years an influential member of the Northern Peiyang military school, Marshal Feng Yuxiang has been nominated by the Kuomintang politicians to be the coming Minister of War in the new regime.

Mr. Chu Ao-hsiang will probably be elected as acting Minister for Foreign Affairs, while Marshal Yen Hsi-shan's Secretary, Mr. Chao Tai-wen, may be nominated as Minister of Interior. Influential Shansi leaders are to be given posts in the Ministries of Communications, Labour and Industry.

Abolition of Yuans.

The Legation authorities are paying keen attention to the political movements in Peking and interesting speculations are being made in connexion with the return of many of the Peking Government leaders who are ready to launch out on a new political experiment by seeking co-operation with the Kuomintang Leftists.

While the Kuomintang Leftists in Peking are advocating the principles of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, it is the consensus of opinion in North China that when the new Government is established it will be the intention of its President, Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, to restore the Cabinet system, disregarding the five Yuans now exercising the functions of the Nanking Government.

In short, the foreign Powers can expect a conservative Government if Marshal Yen Hsi-shan comes into power, despite the Kuomintang Leftist advice in the formation of this new Government. The foreign policy of such a new Government would be more or less on the same lines as that of previous Peking Governments, although it is not certain whether there will be a Parliament.

Battle at Tainan.

The Shansi forces along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway are fighting with renewed energy on the arrival of their Commander-in-chief, Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, and serious warfare has broken out near Tainan Railway Station, between the opposing armies since Sunday evening.

Casualties on both sides have been registered in thousands. The Shansi forces are adopting the offensive.

It is estimated that well over 40,000 Nanking troops are engaged in the fighting near Tainan and Kufow, while Marshal Yen Hsi-shan is directing four Shansi Divisions, 25,000 men, to meet the Nationalist at Tainan, making Tainan their Headquarters.

A precarious and critical situation prevails in Tainan in view of the serious fighting now in progress some thirty miles to the south of Tainan.

QUESTION ON THE AIR CRASH.

M.P. SEEKS INFORMATION ON THE REGULATIONS.

SAFETY MEASURES.

London, July 22.

The air disaster which occurred yesterday at Meopham, Kent, when six persons were killed, was the subject of a question in Parliament today. The Under Secretary for Air, Mr. F. Montague, was asked to state what control the Air Ministry exercised over passenger carrying aircraft, whether such machines were subject to periodical inspection, how often such inspections were made and if he was satisfied that the regulations were carried out in such a manner as to reduce accidents to a minimum.

Mr. Montague, in reply, said it was difficult within the compass of Parliament to summarise the very elaborate regulations prescribed by the Air Ministry in order to ensure the safety of passenger carrying aircraft. Briefly, the Air Ministry required such aircraft to be inspected within twenty-four hours of each flight, the inspection being undertaken by a competent ground engineer who was required to provide a certificate in writing.

The inspection covered not only the machine but also the engine or engines. The person in charge of the aircraft had to satisfy himself that the various requirements had been met.

Whilst he was not in a position to make any definite statement in regard to the machine that crashed, until the investigation of the Air Ministry into the accident was complete, he was in general satisfied that the regulations were most strictly applied and everything possible was done by those responsible for the air service to reduce the risk of accident to a minimum.

He took the opportunity on behalf of the Air Ministry, Lord Thomson, and himself of conveying to the relatives of those who had lost their lives an expression of profound sympathy in their bereavement, and he was sure the House would wish to be associated with it.—British Wireless.

LEGAL ARGUMENT ON PROPERTY.

MR. POTTER ON VIEWS OF THE OTHER SIDE.

LOCAL PROCEDURE.

"If my friend's arguments are right, the results will be of such a revolutionary nature and will come as such a shock to the Colony, that I would like them placed in Your Lordship's notes," said Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., when addressing the Full Court this morning.

In the course of his address he dealt with the effect of the arguments put forward by Mr. H. G. Sheldon, in respect of the appeal made by Tsang Cheung (defendant) against the decision of Sir Henry Gollan in which he found respondent (Li Fo-kwai, alias Li Kan, plaintiff) was entitled to land and buildings free of Tsang Cheung's mortgage for $25,000, it being alleged by plaintiff that the mortgage was fraudulently put through by his son, Li Nga-ching, who cannot now be found.

Mr. Sheldon's argument, pointed out counsel, was that equitable estate, whether created through a written instrument, or whether it did not depend on a written instrument, unless it was registered under the Land Registration Ordinance, was destroyed and of no use.

Attractive Argument.

As regards the interest it did not depend on a written document, and his friend said that it was your misfortune if you have a written interest, as it was destroyed. It was an attractive argument from a lawyer's point of view, and Mr. Sheldon in fact quoted from an Irish Bank case to show that it was not only a misfortune to take those interests, but that it was done at one's own peril.

He (counsel) would give a House of Lords case from Ireland that disposed of the whole argument to show that equitable interest which did not depend on a written instrument did not come within the Irish Land Registry. He was quite certain his friend had not noticed that case, or he would not have put his argument before them.

Point Illustrated.

Dealing with the notice of trust of title deeds, Mr. Potter cited as an illustration of his point the case, which was constantly recurring in Hongkong of a partnership which had land property in Hongkong. Everyone knew that the partnership owns property, but it was never put in the name of the partnership, "John Smith and Co." and never in the name of all the partners, which may number twenty.

It was put in the name of one man and why? That man presumably had a desire to obtain bank facilities for loans on the property, and it was found that if the trust was held by the whole partnership, no man could possibly lend money to a partnership without consulting all the partners. If a man went to the Lordships and said he wanted to borrow $20,000 on the mortgage of property he supposed the first question would be, security.

"Oh, I am a registered owner," the man would reply.

"What about deeds?" you would ask, and if he could not produce them, you would not produce a penny. The deeds might be held by the bank as a security on an overdraft.

Title Deeds.

If the deeds, added counsel, could not be produced after the conveyance had gone through, you might just as well tear them up. They were valueless.

Dealing with the hardship of the appellant in a case where he wished to raise money on his property, Mr. Potter cited a case where Mr. Jenkin, desirous of purchasing property but for some reason best known to himself and trusting to the beneficence of the owner of the property, might have

RAIN INTERRUPTS CRICKET.

FIVE COUNTY GAMES ABANDONED.

ANOTHER FINE DISPLAY BY DULEEPSINHJI.

UNDEFEATED AT 185.

London, July 22.

Rain seriously interfered with the County cricket matches which started on Saturday, five being abandoned owing to bad weather conditions. The other three matches were decided on the first innings and produced some notable batting performances. Duleepsinhji, who will again figure in England's Test team at the week-end, made the fine score of 185 not out against Essex.

Results in Brief.

Notts. won the first innings against Middlesex at Lords. Essex won on the first innings against Sussex at Brighton. Gloucester won on the first innings v. Kent at Maidstone. The following matches were abandoned owing to rain, each team taking four points: Lancashire v. Surrey at the Oval. Derbyshire v. Yorkshire at Chesterfield. Leicester v. Somerset at Leicester. Warwick v. Hampshire at Coventry. Glamorgan v. Northants at Peterborough.

The Honours List.

The following are the principal batting and bowling performances during the last County matches:

Batting.

Duleepsinhji (Sussex) 185
Russell (Essex) 178
Walker (Notts.) 165
Pope (Essex) 123
Payton (Notts.) 90

Bowling.

Voece (Notts.) 4 for 47
Bowley (Sussex) 5 for 80
Nichols (Essex) 4 for 77
Freeman (Kent) 5 for 107
Parker (Gloucester) 6 for 63
White (Somerset) 6 for 50
Mayer (Warwick) 6 for 43

Notts v. Middlesex.

Notts. had things largely their own way in the match at Lords, but the playing time was reduced by rain and they were unable to press home their advantage. Notts. declared at 348 for four wickets in the first innings, a fine stand being made by Walker and Payton. The latter was sent back when he had scored 90, but Walker carried his bat for a fine 165.

Middlesex were dismissed for 174 runs, Voece taking four for 47. Notts. went in again to make thirty for one wicket before the game ended.

Essex v. Sussex.

Essex won on the first innings at Brighton, the match being characterised by some excellent bowling performances. Essex made 362 in their first knock, 301 of the total being made by just two batsmen. Pope and Russell were the only two batsmen to make anything of the bowling and they were associated in a lengthy partnership which gave Essex first innings points. Pope made 123 and Russell 178, the other batsmen falling largely when facing Bowley, who took five for 90 runs. Sussex went in to make 210, Nichols taking four wickets for 43 runs. Essex knocked out 279 in their second innings when Bowley took four for 77. Sussex went in again to make the big score of 302 for three wickets. This was largely compiled by Duleepsinhji who was still undefeated after a fine innings which added 185 to the score.

Gloucester v. Kent.

Gloucester batted first and made 299, Freeman taking five for 107. Kent could only total 223, Parker taking five for 63. The match ended with Gloucester's second innings score at 183 for four.

VICTIM OF LOK MA CHAU TRAGEDY.

FUNERAL OF MRS. C. S. MADGWICK.

A poignant scene was witnessed at the Protestant Cemetery at Happy Valley last evening, when the funeral took place of Mrs. C. S. Madgwick, wife of the European Police Officer in charge of Lok Ma Chau Police Station, who was killed by an Indian constable in the tragic affair enacted at the lonely police outpost on Monday night.

The respect and sympathy for a colleague stricken with such a terrible misfortune was more than evidenced by the large number of Police officers who fell into line as the cortege passed the Monument. The hearse was covered with a profusion of flowers, while other wreaths were carried by a detachment of some 50 officers who followed behind. The chief mourner, Sergeant Madgwick, was present while next came the Inspector General of Police (Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe), Mr. T. H. King, (Director of Criminal Intelligence), Mr. D. A detachment of Indian constables under the two Indian Assistant Superintendents, Messrs. Mohinder Singh and Nawab Khan, brought up the rear of the official cortege.

At the gate of the cemetery the coffin was borne by police officers to the place of interment, on an upper terrace overlooking the main cemetery, the pall-bearers being Sergeants Wood, May, Mackay, Bartley, Whitcroft and Britton.

CHINESE BANKERS COMPLAINING.

PROTEST AGAINST BANK MURDER VERDICT.

At the monthly meeting of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce held yesterday afternoon, the proprietors of the Hung Tak Bank, whose five sons and relatives were murdered while asleep on the evening of May 24th by a man named Li Man-pun, made a representation to the Chamber complaining that the verdict of the jury at the Criminal Sessions which found the man guilty while insane, was wrong. The Chinese bankers held the view that Li Man-pun when he committed the murders must have known the full portent of his crime.

It will be recalled that Li Man-pun was sentenced on Thursday at the Supreme Court after a lengthy sitting when at the conclusion of the case Sir Joseph Kemp, the Chief Justice, ordered accused to be detained in the Victoria Gaol until His Majesty's pleasure is known.

In forwarding their long representation to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, Messrs. Fung and Ching, the fathers of the murdered boys, asked why, if Li Man-pun was of unsound mind on May 24th, he selected sons of his proprietors, leaving alone the other members of the Bank sleeping on the same floors. The bankers also commented on the murderer's visits to the kitchens to secure the choppers with which he committed the gruesome crime. They considered it unusual that the murderer should be so familiar with the whereabouts of the choppers if of unsound mind.

Precedent Established.

Some of the members of the Chinese Chamber commented on the representation and one of them expressed the view that it was feared that others might in future pretend to be insane in perpetrating similar crimes, hoping to find leniency from the English law. They said that it was quite possible that, being an ex-official of the Hung Tak Bank, Li Man-pun might have been greatly annoyed when he was dismissed by the management years ago.

After some consideration the Chairman of the Chamber, Mr. Li Yick-mui, consented to hand over to the S.C.A. and a similar copy to the Chinese representatives of the Legislative Council, the bankers' representation which urges the authorities to reconsider the case.

About the same time, the funeral also took place of P. C. Dalip Singh, the Sikh constable said to be responsible for Mrs. Madgwick's death, and also of Chajja Singh, the other constable who was killed in the same affair. The obsequies were in accordance with Sikh rites, and were held at the Sikh Temple at Morrison Hill Gap Road, attended by representative officers of the Hongkong Police Force and by a contingent of Indian constables.

FAILURE TO OBTAIN STATEMENT.

CRITICISM OF OMISSION BY POLICE OFFICER.

The failure of the conducting officer to secure a statement from a vital witness was criticised by Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon when holding an inquiry into the circumstances of the death of a Chinese woman, who was killed in attempting to alight from a moving bus in Sai Kung Road, Kowloon City, on June 29.

At the outset the Coroner informed the jury that the medical officer, Dr. K. H. Uttley, who had performed the post mortem examination, was ill and unable to give evidence. There was a statement from the officer and although it was not strictly evidence the Coroner said he proposed to read it to the jury. If they were satisfied they might be able to come to a decision without the evidence of the doctor, but should they wish to ask Dr. Uttley any questions then the inquiry would be adjourned.

The statement submitted by Dr. Uttley was then read to the jury. The medical officer gave the cause of death as concussion following a fracture of the base of the skull. The husband of the deceased intimated that his wife had gone to consult a medical practitioner about a sore finger which had been giving her constant trouble.

When asked if he had any questions to put to the witness, Mr. J. Fraser, foreman of the jury, remarked that they would like to hear what Dr. Ho, whom the woman had consulted, had to say. The foreman pointed out the importance of this evidence, remarking that the woman might have been very faint and suffering from severe pain, causing her to lose her balance when trying to alight.

The Coroner remarked that it seemed very strange that Sub-Inspector Nicol had not secured a statement from the last person who had spoken to the deceased. It looked as if they would have to adjourn for Dr. Ho's evidence. It was not known what had happened when the deceased was at the doctor's. She might have had an anesthetic.

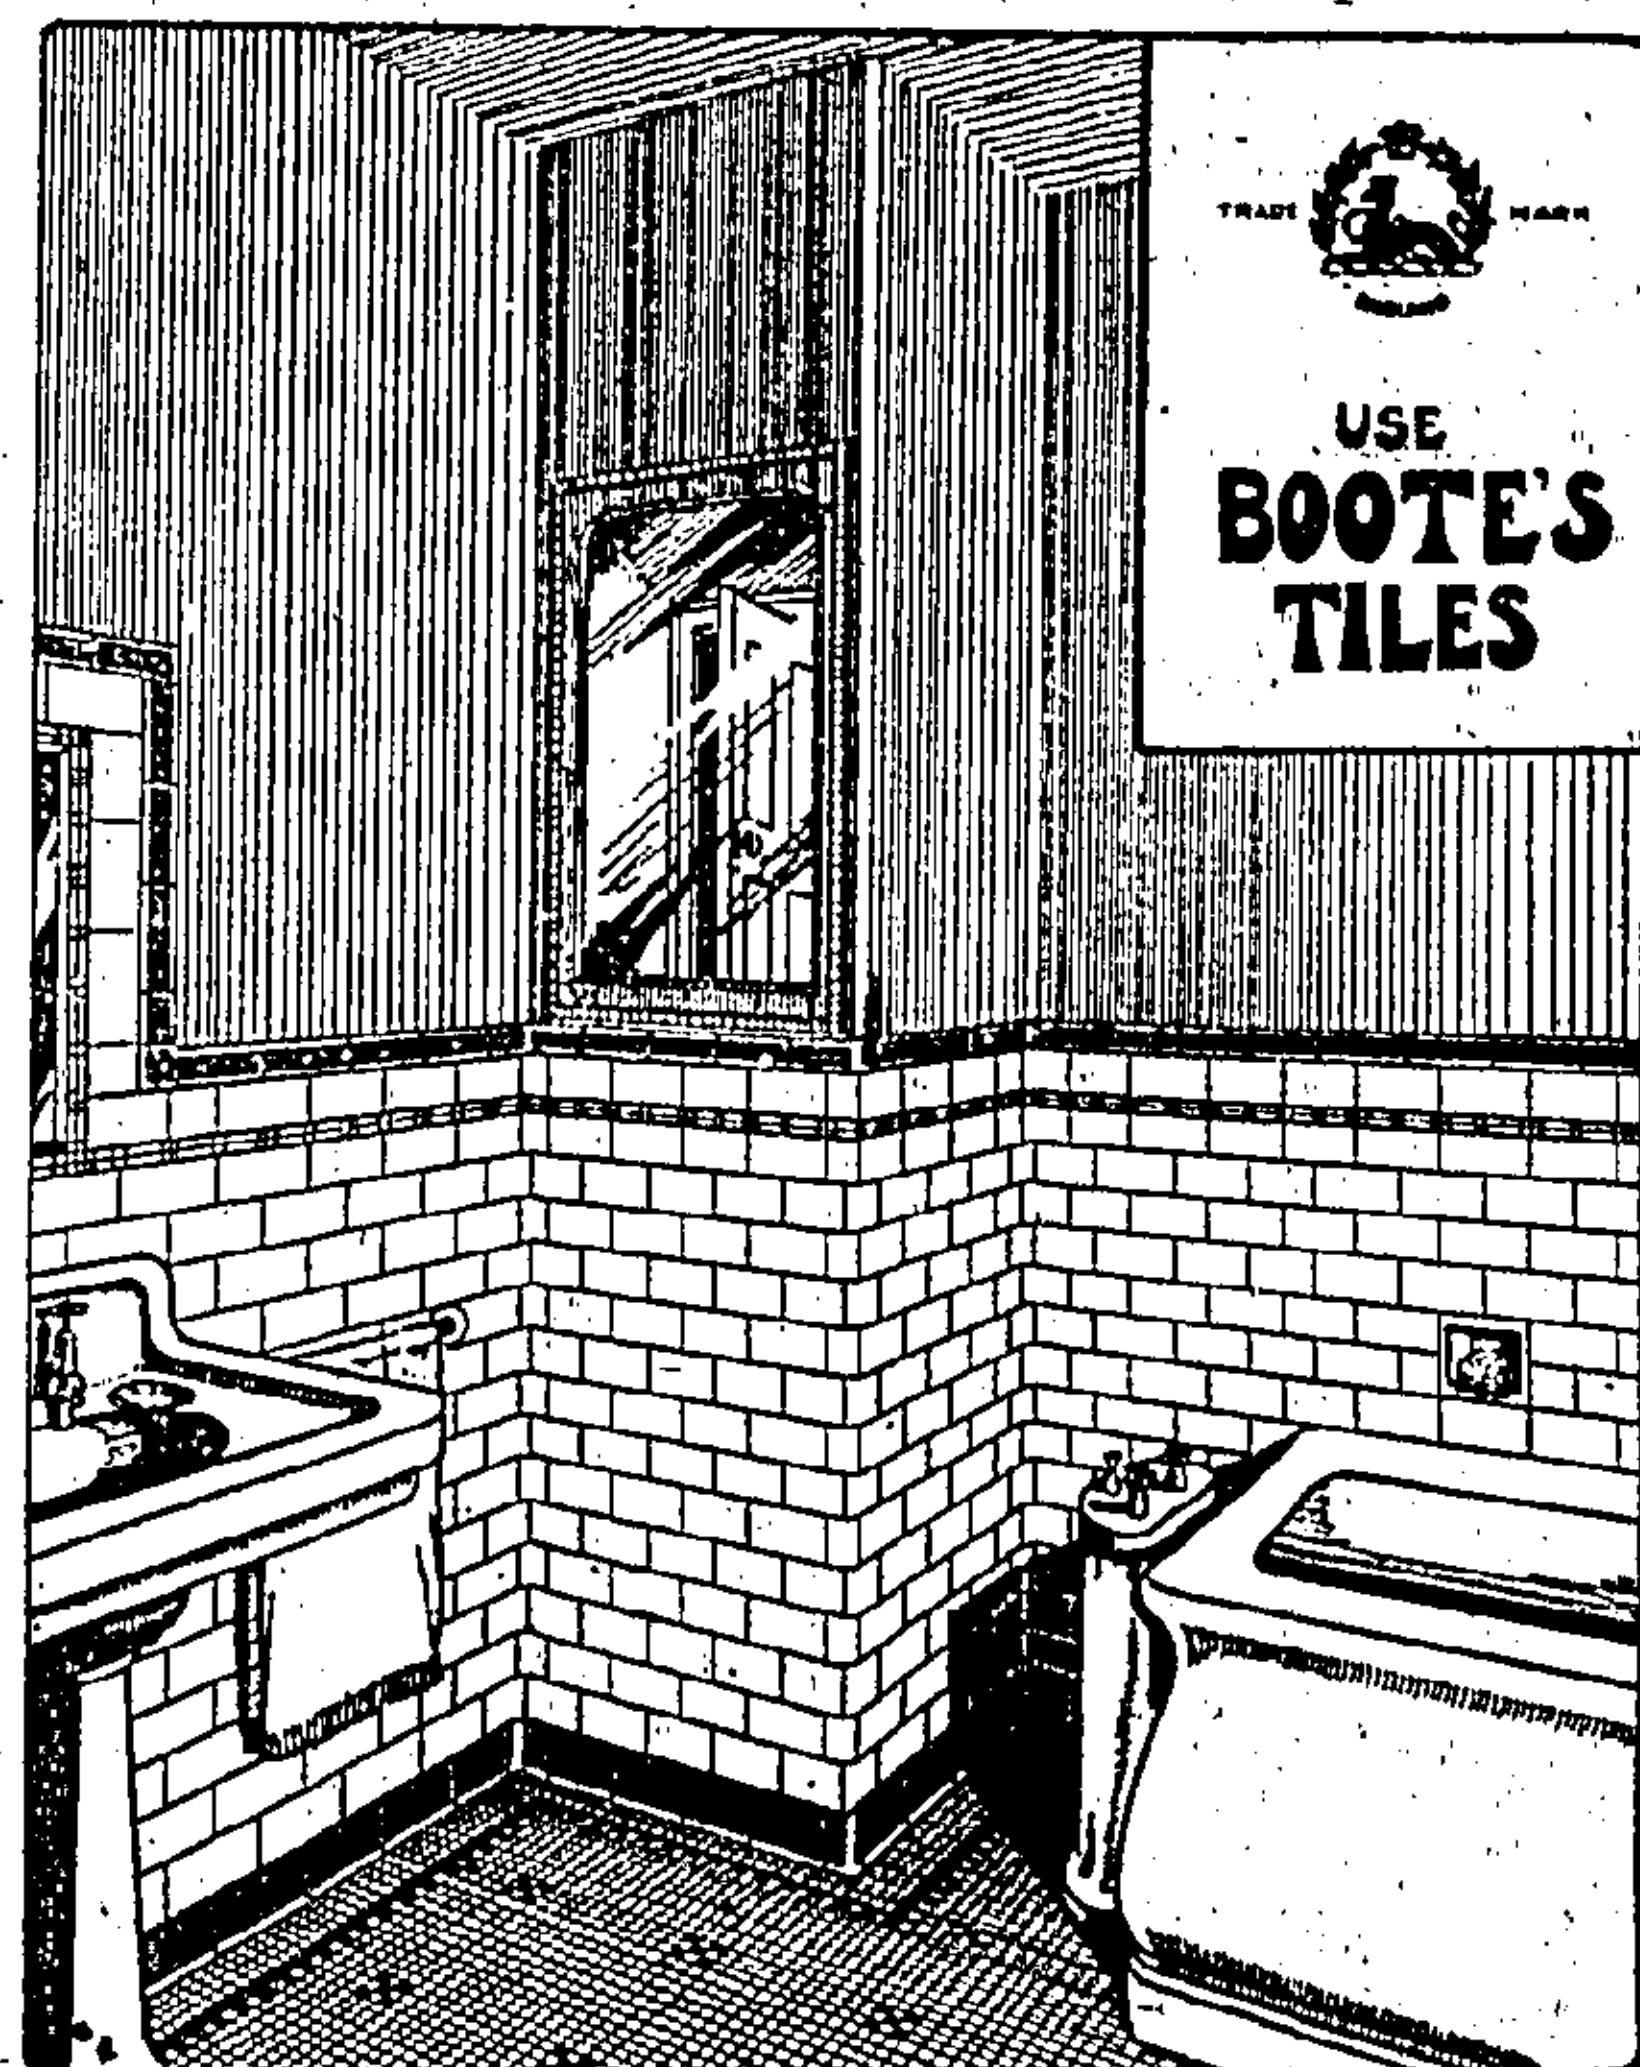

The police officer replied that, being a private doctor, he had not taken a statement from him.

Evidence was given by a female passenger who intimated that the deceased had walked to the exit before the bus had stopped but the witness did not see her fall. The inquiry was adjourned.

Concluding the school year, students at the Cathedral School for Girls in Yates Road, Shanghai appeared in a delightful operetta titled, fittingly enough, "A Midsummer's Day." The gay costumes of the small flowers and fairies made a memorable picture, while the young players handled their roles with skill.

CAR GETS OUT OF CONTROL.CORONER AND "ALARMING POSSIBILITY."

"The steering-wheel went round helplessly in my hands and I could not do anything," said Miss Patricia Morden, the 19-year-old daughter of Colonel W. Grant Morden, M.P., for Brentford, at the inquest at Westminster, on Joseph Barber Boyes, aged 23, a clerk, of Grosvenor-road, S.W.

Miss Morden was driving a saloon car in Eaton-square at 18 to 20 miles an hour when it mounted the pavement and knocked Boyes down.

She stated that she had had trouble with the steering gear a fortnight before and the car had been repaired.

Inspector Lockyer, of the Public
Carriage Department, Scotland Yard, said that he had examined the push and pull rod of the motor-car. The drop-arm had fallen owing to the ball slot having become worn.

The Coroner (Mr. Ingleby Oddie) told the jury that it was very alarming to think that thousands of cars in the streets of London, if the steering dislocated in this way, might get out of control at any time and mount the pavement.

Such a thing could not happen to a London omnibus or taxi-cab because the authorities insisted on such a design that if there was looseness in ball and socket it was extremely unlikely, if not impossible, for the two parts to become separated.

He had been told, he said, that the reason why the same design was not adopted for motor-cars was because of the expense, but that was a poor answer.

"Surely, if it is a question of only a few shillings, as it is apparently, our manufacturers might entail the expense in the interests of public safety. The first thing I shall do when I get home is to look at my car, and I dare say a good many people will."

Referring to women drivers,
Mr. Odie said that when a dangerous emergency arose women generally did not know what to do.
The jury returned a verdict of accidental death and exonerated
Miss Morden from blame.

ALL-CHINA CHAMBER MEETING.SESSION HANDICAPPED BY CIVIL WARS.

At the monthly meeting of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon the Secretary, Mr. Chan Heung-pak, told the meeting that he was informed by the National Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai that the proposed meeting of the All-China Chamber of Commerce to be held in Shanghai on August 1 has been definitely postponed on account of the civil wars in North China which would prevent the representatives from the North China Chambers of Commerce from attending. The National Chamber, however, has signified the intention of holding the meeting in two or three months, when war in the North terminates.

Mr. M. K. Lo, pursuant to notice, invited answers from the Chairman to the following questions:

Q. "With reference to the Motion of the Board passed on the 18th February, 1930, in connexion with the scourge of Tuberculosis, will the Head of the Sanitary Department inform the Board:

(a) Whether the Motion has received the consideration of the Government.

A. "Yes."

Q. (i) If so, what action (if any) the Government intends to take thereon:

(ii) In particular, whether any decision has been come to in regard to the 'feasibility of providing some form of 'Poor Law' infirmaries for the care of Chinese cases."

A. (i) No decision has yet been reached; except that

(ii) As regards the provision of a Poor Law infirmary for the Tuberculous, the Government, though sympathetic, considers that priority must be given to the erection of a new G. C.
H.; the extension of the Kowloon Hospital and the construction of a properly-designed infectious diseases hospital.

Those present at the meeting besides the Chairman (Mr. G. R.
Sayer) were the Hon. Mr. H. T.
Creasy (Director of Public Works)
the Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington (Director of Medical and Sanitary Services), the Hon. Mr. J. P.
Braga, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, Mr.
M. K. Lo, Mr. T. N. Chan, Mr. F.
C. Hall, and Mr. J. Watson (Secretary).

The Hon. Mr. Braga replied that if it was desired that a motion be made, he would introduce one at the next meeting in a fortnight's time. He would sooner have the subject discussed by the Board than at a confidential meeting, because it was of much public interest.

The Chairman intimated that a motion was necessary as they did not know what the subject of the discussion was.

The Hon. Mr. Braga respectfully disagreed and pointed out that they had notice of the discussion, which was on the letter from the Government.

Insanitary Closets.

Pursuant to notice Mr. Wong Kwong-tin asked the following questions:

Q. "Has the attention of the Head of the Sanitary Department been drawn to the recent complaints regarding the insanitary state of the following underground water closets:

(a) at the junction of Pottinger Street and Queen's Road Central,

(b) at the junction of D'Aguilar
Street and Wellington Street,

(c) at the junction of Wellington Street and Queen's Road Central?

Are the noxious gases emanating from these places due to an inadequate supply of water or to a lack of supervision?

A. "Yes. There is no lack of water and the supervision appears adequate. The possibility of improving the ventilation will be investigated."

Q. "Will the Head of the Sanitary Department consider the abolition of the dry system for all public closets at Hongkong and Kowloon and employ in its stead the system of water carriage?"

A. "I understand that to be the policy of the Board, wherever conditions permit. It is being constantly applied and 60% of public latrines in Hongkong and Kowloon are already water flushed."

Q. "Where the use of dry closets is inevitable, are there any remedies whereby their evil effects may be minimised?"

A. "Smell can be counteracted to some extent by the use of deodorants. The desirability of using deodorants more frequently during the hot damp season will be explored."

SANITARY BOARD.

QUESTION OF HYGIENE IN SCHOOLS.

Discussion on a letter from the Government in connexion with the teaching of hygiene in schools was deferred by the fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday on account of insufficient notice being given by a member who desired to place the subject before the meeting.

The Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga intimated his intention of discussing the letter from the Government in connexion with the teaching of hygiene in schools, but was informed by the Chairman that notice of such motion would have to be given.

The Hon. Mr. Braga replied that if it was desired that a

WOMAN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS

Up-to-Date Mothers.

EARN A NEW TITLE.

Although we hear much of the revolt of youth against parental authority, and there certainly are many instances of parents who have lost all influence over their grown children, yet I believe, says a writer in a Home Journal, that never was the relationship between mother and daughter more delightful than is that which exists very often between the middle-aged woman and her daughter of say, twenty or twenty-five.

There is often a sympathy and understanding existing between them, which is far more comforting to both than almost anything else that life can offer.

Perhaps this can be traced to the fact that mothers nowadays, having been taught early to realise that they need not pretend to be infallible in order to keep the respect of those younger than themselves, have also realised that there are some things which youth can teach them.

The mother who allows her daughter for instance to keep her up-to-date in her dressing, and perhaps even in other ways, not only gains in the eyes of the world, but earns a new title to the love of her daughter, whereas the woman who believes that she is always bound to know best, merely alienates her children through the criticism, unspoken though it may be, which she provokes.

Two Exquisite Models.

On the left is an exquisite model in white chiffon, fashioned with a pannier-like skirt the edges of which are narrowly piped with silver tissue. The second dress, in the new harder black silk net, illustrates another of the approved silhouettes of the moment, the skirt having shaped flounces dipping low in front and sloping upwards towards the waist at the back where they meet a huge bow with long trailing ends.

What Makes Beauty? For the Sweet Course.

MANY OPINIONS EXPRESSED.

"A good nose," recently declared Mr. Ziegfeld, the famous producer, "is the most important feature a girl can have. After the nose comes the chin, because these are the first things we look at in judging a person's face."

Not everyone will agree with him. Many people consider that a woman's eyes are her most attractive feature. And popular opinion seems to be confirmed by the great novelists. Galsworthy, Hardy, and Conrad have all rhapsodised over their heroine's eyes.

Then, after the eyes, surely the hair comes next in importance! Although the length and thickness of a woman's hair may no longer count for much, she herself proves, by the close attention she still gives to it, that it is a feature she cannot afford to neglect.

Of course, the eyes, the hair, and the nose must all have their appropriate setting just as certain gems produce their maximum effect when mounted with others. For this reason the shape of the head is important, and the neck that supports it must be not only elegant, but proportionate in size.

Many a man has been attracted to a woman by the curve of her cheek or the poise of her head. Some have been fascinated by long, dark, sweeping eyelashes; others have been stricken by the arrows shot from a Cupid's bow of a mouth. Just a few who have been privileged to see that holy of holies, a woman's shell-like ear, have fallen down in adoration before it.

The effect of beauty is often enhanced by a freckle or dimple, or even a mole. Features that are too regular are apt to be expressionless. But what can make all the difference to a woman's features is her smile. When, like the sun shining on a TRIFLE SUPREME.

Take a sponge cake of the ring shape (i.e., with an open centre), place in a round glass dish that is large enough to leave a space all round, soak with sherry overnight. Also prepare overnight a pint of rich custard and a pint of pineapple jelly.

Next day fill centre of sponge cake with part of the pineapple jelly, pour layer of custard round the outside, then put a layer of fruit, such as strawberries, loganberries or raspberries, then another layer of the custard, finishing off with remainder of jelly lightly whipped up with cream.

Ornament top of sponge with whipped cream, cherries and almonds or pistachio nuts.

A Delicious Lemon Tart.

Ingredients: One lemon (juice and rind), 2 eggs, 1oz. butter, 3-4oz. castor sugar, short or puff pastry.

Line a tart dish with the pastry, then make a filling with the yolks of the eggs, the butter (melted), half the sugar, the rind and juice of the lemon—mix well and pour on to the pastry. Bake until lightly set (like lemon curd). When cool make a meringue with the whites of eggs beaten stiffly with the rest of the sugar. Set in fairly cool oven 10 minutes. Sufficient for four persons.

Chocolate Custard.

Make a pint of sweetened custard in the usual way, but just before it is finished cooking, dissolve two bars of chocolate (previously grated) in to it. When the mixture begins to thicken, beat well. When cool pour into custard glasses.

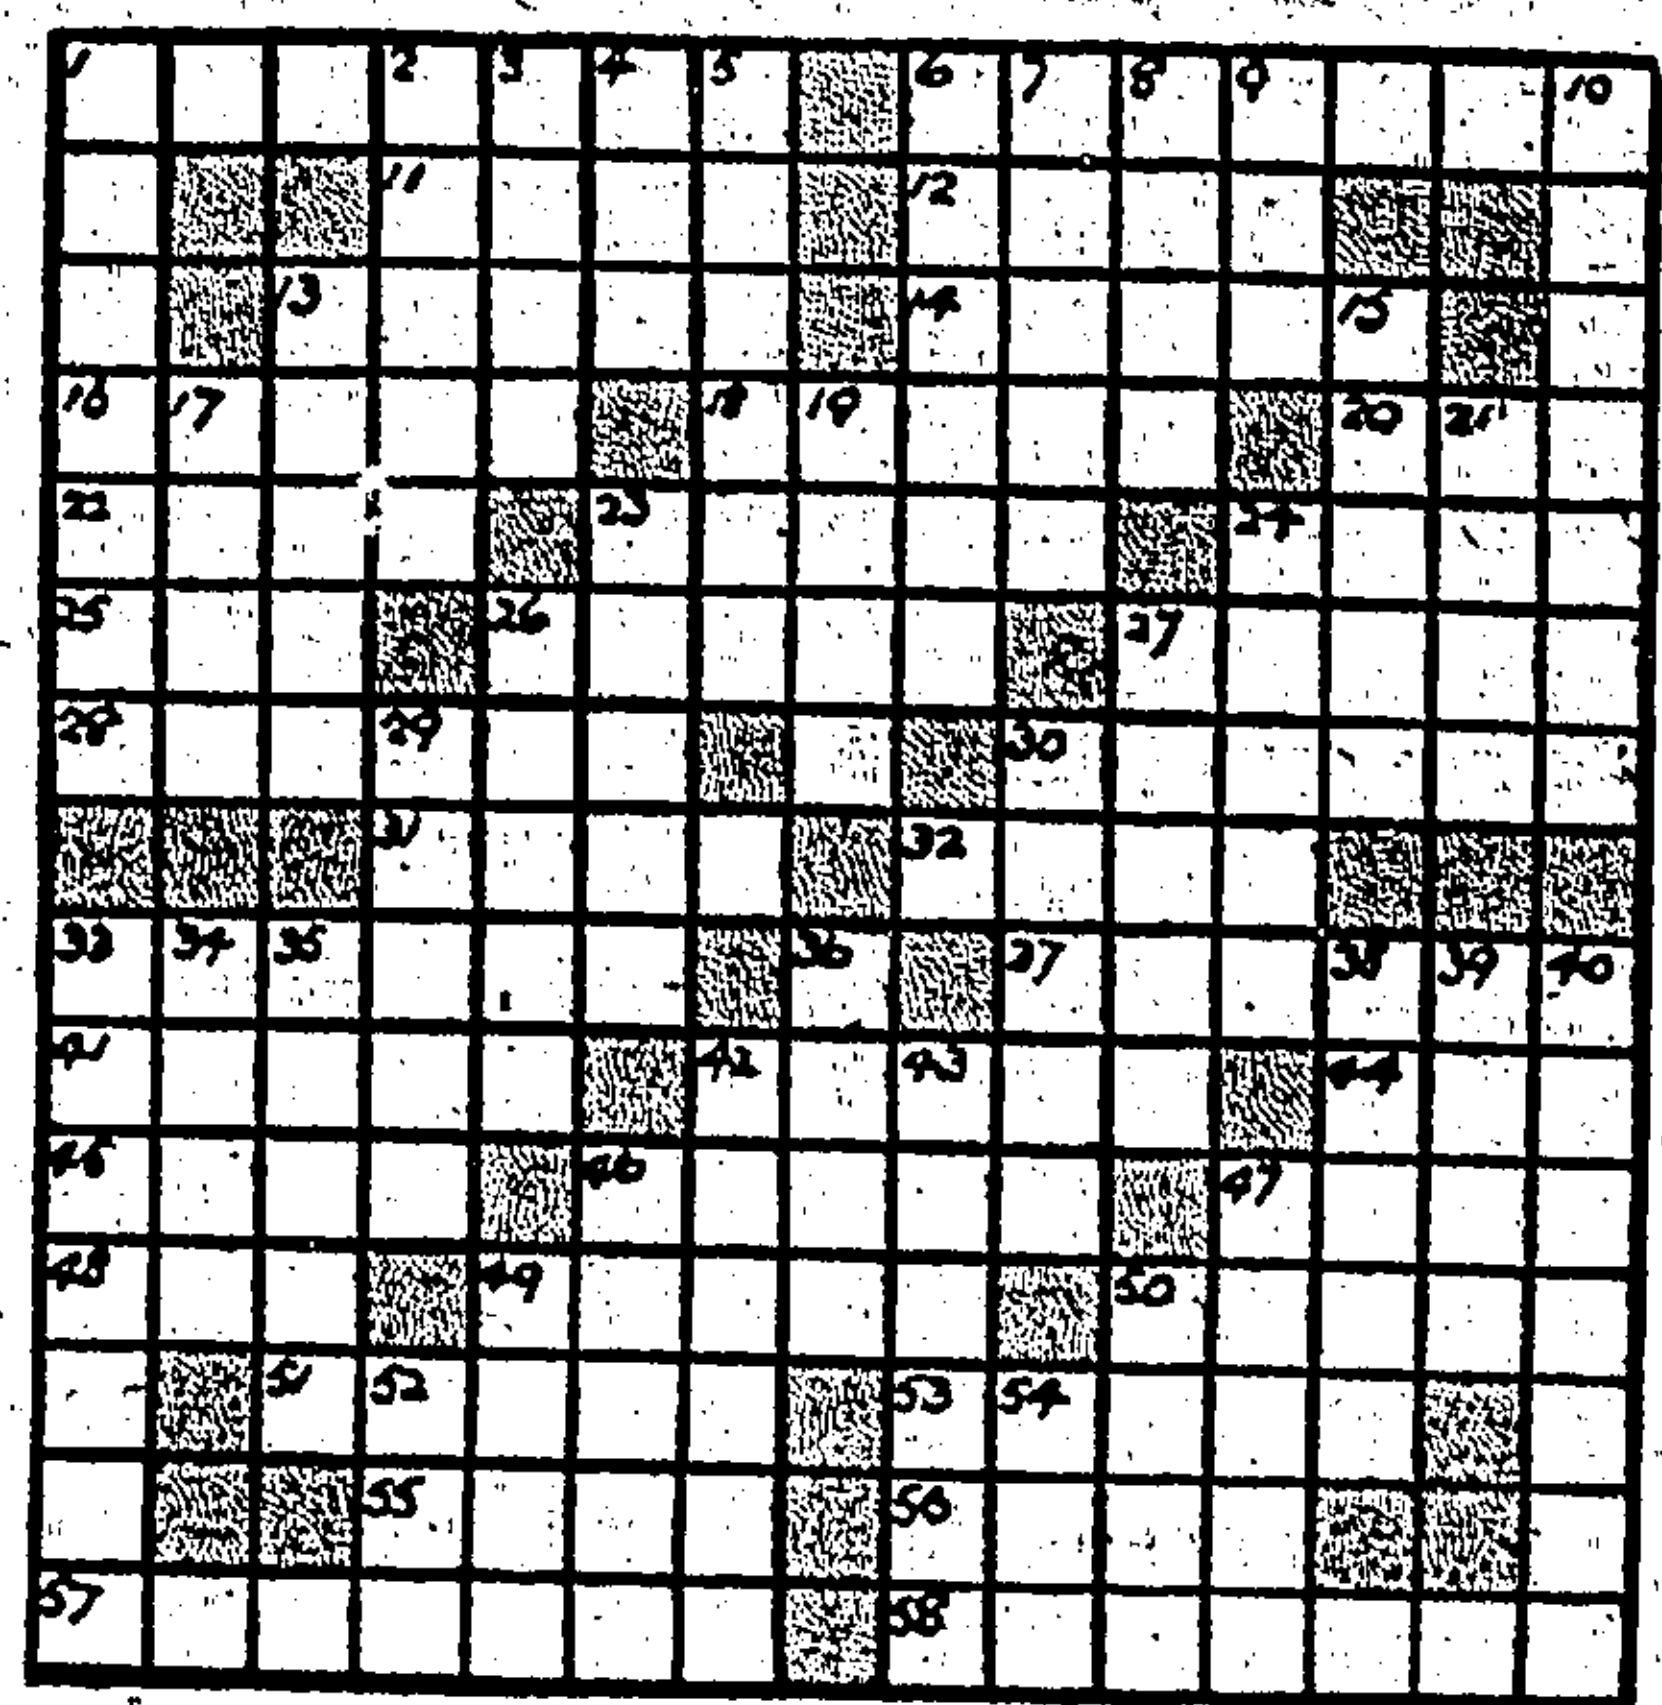

meadow, it lights up a woman's face, her beauty is increased tenfold. It is her greatest asset.

Dainty Lace Dress.

Here is a useful lace model which will serve for little evening dances as well as for smart afternoon occasions. The yoke and sleeves are part of a separate lace slip, which is worn in the daytime but discarded when the dress is needed for evening wear.

THE BIAS BAY PIRATES.

The lengthy respite enjoyed from the attentions of Bias Bay pirates has been broken by the happenings on the s.s. Helikon which were fully reported in our issue of yesterday. Fortunately, the event was not marked by any bloodshed, but, none the less, the experience suffered by the ship's officers and passengers when faced by pirates armed with revolvers and knives could not have been at all pleasant. Fearing detection, the pirates, moreover, threatened death to any of the officers who might succeed in attracting passing vessels, and it is conceivable that if a ship suspicious of the Helikon's movements had come up, a very different story might have had to be told.

The usual procedure followed by the Bias Bay pirates is to board the victimised steamers at Chinese ports, where the searching of passengers is not usually marked by any degree of thoroughness. In this instance, however, they came aboard in Hongkong, as the Helikon does not touch at Chinese ports. In common with all other passengers, they appear to have been searched on board before the ship left, but there are grounds for thinking that not many, if indeed any, of them carried arms. The reports speak of the gang numbering about sixteen all told, and the fact that some of them secured knives from the galley would tend to show that they were not well supplied with weapons. Such arms as they had may, moreover, have been secreted in their luggage. In such circumstances, the few firearms smuggled on board, seeing that there were in all some six hundred passengers, could easily be overlooked. It would, therefore, appear that there is not much room for criticism so far as the searching was concerned, although the subsequent events once again stress the necessity of every possible precaution being taken to guard against passengers getting arms aboard. The fact that the Helikon carried no guards and was not fitted with grilles is explained by the circumstance that she does not call at Chinese ports, being solely engaged in the rice trade between this Colony, Saigon and Bangkok. As a consequence, she does not come within the provisions of the Piracy Prevention Ordinance, which apply only to vessels touching at Amoy, Swatow, Macao, Kwong-chow-wan, Hoihow, Haiphong, the West River, and the waterways of Kwangtung and Kwangsi. It is somewhat strange, however, that no arms of any kind were carried by the ship, although, on the other hand, it is doubtful whether a limited armory would have been of much use in such a surprise attack as was carried out on the Helikon, at a time when practically all the officers were asleep.

The Helikon's experience serves to show that the Bias Bay pirates have still to be reckoned with, and their latest outbreak proves the absolute necessity of anti-piracy measures being continued. Incidentally, the Chinese authorities would not appear to have succeeded either in dispersing the gang or in keeping watch near its headquarters. Had Chinese warcraft been on duty at Bias Bay in the early hours of yesterday morning, it would have been apparent that the Helikon was in the hands of pirates. But the freebooters appear to have had things all their own way. Fortunately, no British subjects were ill-treated or taken ashore, but close on a score of the Chinese passengers have been kidnapped, to say nothing of the losses which were suffered by the others in being robbed of practically all they carried with them. Much anxiety will naturally be felt for those who have been taken into captivity, and we should like to think that the pirates, despite their "gentlemanly" behaviour, will eventually be brought to book and those who have been kidnapped restored to their relatives.

Women Coolies.

The lady journalist from the Philippines who, being a social student, is perplexed and worried by the Colony's women coolies labouring under the strain of great loads, tends to shake the complacency with which this aspect of the Colony's life is viewed by those to whom it has become such a common occurrence that its full significance is not realised. Visitors to the Colony may see these things and they may wonder. Usually, when engaged on a tour of the world, they are so prepared for the unusual that they seldom allow themselves to express bewilderment or surprise. With the Colony's residents merely in the role of unconcerned spectators, the women continue to labour and what Miss Herrera describes as a problem remains untouched. The women of China, however, cannot be compared with their sisters in the majority of other countries. Tell has been their heritage for generation after generation and they accept it with a stoicism which might at times even conceal a desire to be allowed to continue toiling. We are forced to the conclusion that the mere struggle for existence is, in the majority of cases, responsible for the fact that the many Chinese women work at the most menial tasks. Stern necessity must be the urge when a woman toils in the heat of the day breaking stones, carrying giant loads or doing work which in many other parts of the world is that of a man, and sometimes with a tiny bundle of humanity strapped to her back. If the outside observer pauses for one moment to consider he cannot but deplore an economic situation which makes this necessary but he may not be aware of the titanic struggle for existence which the poorer Chinese wage daily or of the glut of labour for tasks both great and small. Our visitor from the Philippines asks whether such things must continue. We are forced to acknowledge that the years seemingly bring little improvement in this particular economic problem. The women still toil and it is difficult to see Conclusion and shock attendant on the mishap brought about the death of a 60-year-old Chinese woman, as yet unidentified, who was knocked down by a China Company bus at Shanghai Street, Yaumati, yesterday. The woman was taken to the Kwong Wah Hospital, where she died shortly afterwards.

She is owned by Martin Mosvald, for whom Messrs. Karsten, Larssen are the local agents. Capt. Tjelsted is in command of the vessel, which arrived here from Shanghai in ballast. She carries a crew of seven Norwegian officers with 31 Asiatic seamen.

THREE MEN AND A BANGLE.

SATISFACTORY EXPLANATION NOT GIVEN.

Failing to give satisfactory explanations as to how they had obtained a bangle, three men who appeared before Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of possession of the bangle were fined $25 or three weeks' hard labour each. The first defendant indicated that a friend had requested him to pawn the bangle, which he had given to the second defendant, who in turn handed it to the third defendant to pawn. It was while the third defendant was in the shop that a detective appeared on the scene.

Detective Sergeant Fitches intimated that when the first defendant was subsequently arrested he told two different stories to the police.

how the standard of living can be raised to such a height that women need no longer labour. There is always the inexorable law of supply and demand and it must be confessed that the possibility of a solution of the problem even in the distant future is so remote as to be an inaccessible goal.

TIERED OF LIFE.

ONE SUICIDE AND TWO ATTEMPTS.

Tse Foo-chau (24), a native of Waichow, living at No. 130, Nam-cheung Street, was found in an unconscious state under the verandah of the Supreme Court yesterday, having apparently taken opium in an attempt to commit suicide.

He was removed to the Government Civil Hospital. The motive for the attempt is unknown.

Yet another attempt to commit suicide from a Yaumati Ferry boat is reported by the police in connexion with the case of Wong Lai-ting, a room boy employed at the Tai Loy Boarding House on the central waterfront, who threw himself from the Nam Shun yesterday.

The ferry was then on its way from Hongkong to Yaumati. The attention of near-by craft was drawn to the man struggling in the water, and he was eventually picked out by some sampan people, and removed ashore to hospital.

Mystery surrounds the death of a Chinese male whose body was found dangling by means of a rope knotted around his neck, from a beam in a public latrine at Bowrington Canal yesterday morning.

Overnight, the man, whose identity is unknown, and whose age was about 50, had apparently hanged himself, proceeding about the task with deliberation, as evidenced by the difficult knot which he passed around his neck. The body was in a state of emaciation, and it is surmised that poverty in his old age had driven the unfortunate man to end his existence.

THREW HAMMER AT A MAN.

QUARREL LANDS WOMAN IN POLICE COURT.

A charge of causing grievous bodily harm to a man residing at Shamshuipo was brought against a woman before Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Sub-inspector M. H. Hourihan applied for a week's formal remand and intimated that, during a quarrel over rent, the woman threw a hammer at the complainant, inflicting a fracture to his leg. The Police did not believe, however, that the woman had intentionally thrown the hammer. The defendant was remanded for one week on $50 bail.

HOTEL EMPLOYEES CHARGED.

ACCUSED OF THEFT OF MONEY.

Two servants of the 'Great China Hotel at Connaught Road Central, namely Liu Chi-ching (40), the accountant, and Lee Chak-lam (35), his assistant, were arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing $6,300 belonging to the Hotel.

They were charged before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning and remanded for 48 hours for further investigations.

Mr. Horace Lo is appearing for Liu Chi-ching, who, with the other man, has been granted bail in the sum of $5,000.

LAD ATTACKED BY ALSATIAN.

BITTEN WHILST READING IN GARDEN.

Jackie Odell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Odell, living at Pokfulam Road, in a house situated on Lot No. 218, was attacked by an Alsatian dog belonging to a neighbour, Mr. Mognaschi, yesterday, evening.

The boy was sitting on the lawn, reading a book, when, without warning, the dog sprang at him and bit him in the chest. He was immediately taken to Dr. Woo, of Queen's Building and given precautionary treatment.

The dog has since been removed to the Kennedy Town depot for observation.

HELIKON RESUMES VOYAGE.

CLEARED FROM HONGKONG LAST NIGHT.

After lying at Kowloon Bay the whole of yesterday afternoon, the s.s. Helikon, which was pirated on her way to Saigon, left Hongkong for that port yesterday evening with over 30 passengers.

Capt. W. Anderson is in command of the vessel with Mr. J. S. Kirkpatrick as Chief Officer, Mr. W. Anderson as Chief Engineer and Mr. G. E. Marr as Second Engineer.

The Very Idea!

The vicar and his curate were having a round of golf, and at the seventh hole were in bad luck. The vicar (in the rough) taking his mashie lifted a divot with the ball. His caddy replaced only part of the divot, at which the vicar exclaimed—
 "But what about that clod over there!"

"Oh, he's all right," replied the caddy. "I've had my eye on him—he's had four already!"

Railway Passenger—"But how am I to spend two hours in this wretched hole?"

Porter—"Well, it ain't quite in order, sir, but would you like to come into the porters' room and have a game of shove 'penney?"

The wealthy man was on his deathbed, and had called his rather profligate son to his side. "I am passing away, John," said the dying man, "and what will become of you when I'm gone?"

"Don't worry about me, dad," replied the careless one. "The question is, what will become of you?"

Two Scotsmen had quarrelled, and had not spoken to each other for a number of years. Then they met one day.

"Come on, let's be friends, Sandy," said Jack. "Dinna let us go on like this."

"Righto," replied Sandy, "we'll go an' hae a drink. What'll ye hae?"

"I'll hae a double whisky," said Jack.

"What!" exclaimed Sandy. "Dae ye want to start another row?"

One of the two rival village churches had just installed a new organ. One Sunday morning a member of the church that could not boast of a new organ met a friend, who belonged to the other congregation.

"I hear you've got a new organ," said the first man. "All you need now is a monkey."

His friend smiled slyly—"And all you need is an organ," he answered.

From a river bank, quite close to a lunatic asylum, an angler was pursuing his favourite sport.

By and by, in making a big throw of his line, the hook caught in the back of his coat, and despite all his exertions and contortions, he could not extricate it.

Just when he was in despair, a "daffie" passed and saw the other's plight. "Tak' aff yer jacket, ye silly gowk!" he cried.

A woman's quickness of observation led to Frank Cadd, a soldier, being sentenced at Aldershot to three months' hard labour for the theft of a suit of clothes. The clothes, which belonged to Corporal Bowie, Royal Corps of Signals, had been stolen when he visited the new Aldershot swimming pool. Later Bowie's sister saw a man in Aldershot High-street wearing a suit she believed to be her brother's. She walked close to him. Having satisfied herself that it was the stolen suit, she followed the man and gave him in charge to the first policeman she met.

WHO WAS?
Mrs. PARTINGTON.

In the winter of 1824 a storm of unusual violence raged over Devon, and the seas ran enormously high. The town of Sidmouth was flooded, and most of the inhabitants took refuge in the upper stories. Not so the dauntless Mrs. Partington. Shod in pattens and armed with a mop she prepared to push away the Atlantic Ocean as fast as it invaded her kitchen.

The Atlantic might rage, but Mrs. Partington was also annoyed. Like King Canute she defied the waves, and equally with King Canute she was routed. As Sydney Smith said in his election at Taunton in 1831:—"She was excellent at a puddle, but she should never have meddled with a tempest."

The speaker was comparing her action to that of the House of Lords in rejecting the Reform Bill, which was bound to be passed sooner or later. Multitudinous are the Mrs. Partingtons of this world, the people who waste time and energy in defying the inevitable, and opposing the march of progress just because it inconveniences them personally for the time being. An American writer has adapted the character of Mrs. Partington to a story of his own, making of her a sort of Mrs. Malaprop, which was ingenious of him, but unwarranted by fact.

GIRL'S SENTENCE
CANCELLED.COMMITTED TO CHARGE OF THE S.C.A.

RELATIVES WARNED.

The commitment to the charge of the Secretary for Chinese Affairs of a young girl, who had formerly rejected an offer to be taken into the Salvation Army Home, following her appearance before the Court on a charge of larceny, was made by Mr. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when the case was again mentioned.

In reply to his Worship, Mr. John Barrow, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, produced a written application, brought under Ordinance No. 11 of 1901 (Reformatory Schools), for the girl to be committed to the charge of the S.C.A. for the purpose of her being boarded out.

His Worship intimated that he had given the matter his careful consideration and he could see no objection to the order being made except that he would have to take formal evidence from the relatives.

The grandfather, who is serving a term of two months' imprisonment on a charge of receiving arising out of the same larceny, was put into the witness-box and asked various questions concerning the defendant's parents, etc. When the grandmother, who stubbornly refused to allow her daughter to be sent to the Salvation Army, gave evidence corroborating her husband, she refused to sign the testimony, indicating her fear that it was a document for her consent for the commitment of the girl to the Salvation Army Home.

His Worship said he wanted to ask the relatives if they had any representations to make, as it was his intention to order the girl to be put in the charge of the S.C.A. who would probably board her out at a home. If the relatives had any objections against the order, his Worship wished they would state them.

The grandfather agreed that the girl should be sent to school and was quite willing to have her returned to him when she reached the age of 16 or 18, according to the Ordinance, she being at present 14 years of age.

The grandmother, however, again refused to allow the girl to be taken care of by the S.C.A. and insisted that she be sent to prison.

His Worship cancelled the sentence of six months' hard labour and registered a caution instead. He over-ruled the grandmother's objection and made the order that the girl be put in the charge of the S.C.A. to be boarded out. He also warned the relatives that, according to the Ordinance, any person attempting to induce the girl to run away or found with the child in their company was liable to a fine of $200, or two months' hard labour.

CANTON FORCES
ACTIVE.NANNING SAID CAPTURED BY YUNNESE.

REBELS ORGANISED.

Canton, July 22. Considerable activity is taking place in the various Military, Naval and Air Force Bureaux here in connexion with the Kwangsi campaign.

A number of gunboats left Canton yesterday and to-day for Wuchow, and aeroplanes are making daily flights between the two cities, the headquarters now being at Wuchow. General Chan Chai-tong, Commander-in-Chief of the Nationalist Armies in South China, has been spending a few days in Canton, but left here to-day by rail for Sam Shui, whence he will proceed to Wuchow by the gunboat Fung Mo.

Three hundred wounded soldiers and officers have been returned to Canton from Wuchow and have been distributed in the various military and municipal hospitals.

News has been received from General Li Yung-king, Commander of the 63rd Division, that a number of Kwangsi Nationalist troops under the command of General Lui Ting-hsiang captured Pinglo on the Kwei Kiang (Cassia River) without meeting much resistance. These Kwangsi troops are loyal Nationalists and must not be confused with the Kwangsi rebels operating in conjunction with General Chang Fat-kwei and his Ironsides.

General Li Yung-king states that he is pushing on, with Kwei-lin, the capital of Kwangsi, as his objective. With the assistance of the 8th Route Army (Kwangtung troops) he is attacking from the south-east, whilst the 4th Route Army (Hunanese troops) are also advancing towards Kwei-lin from the north.

The rebels are now stated to number about 9,000, having recently re-organised into three divisions of 3,000 each, under General Chang Fat-kwei, General Yang Tang-fei and General Liang Chai-chi.

In South Kwangsi, the Yun-nanese troops claim to have entered Nanning on the 18th July, the Kwangsi rebels there under General Wai Yun-chung offering no resistance and withdrawing towards the north-west in the direction of Wang Hsien and Kwei Hsien.

Meantime, the 8th Route Army is concentrating all available forces at Wuchow and it is generally felt that though the Yun-nanese intend to co-operate with the Cantonese Nationalists in exterminating the Kwangsi and Ironsides rebels, General Chan Chai-tong has reason to feel some anxiety at the possibility that the Yun-nanese may be preparing to invade Kwangtung with Canton as their objective, whilst protesting their loyalty to the Nationalist cause.—Our Own Correspondent.

LEGAL ARGUMENT ON PROPERTY.

his name put in the register because Mr. Jenkin did not desire it to be generally known that he owned property.

Times become hard and the man thinks he could raise a little money on this property, and supposing he obtained a purchaser and said "I am the owner, look at the register." If that view of the law was correct, what happened? The man who wanted to lend the money says, "I will lend you the money, but where are the title deeds?"

At once the fat was in the fire so far as any swindle on his part was concerned. "I have not got them," the man replies, "Mr. Jenkin has them."

Any ordinary man would immediately ask "What in the world has Mr. Jenkin got them for?" That was the only hardship the appellant has to suffer, if he is asked for the deeds.

The case is proceeding.

MR. HOOVER SIGNS
THE TREATY.SECURES FULL DEFENCE OF
THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, July 22.

President Hoover signed the Naval Treaty this afternoon and said that when other Governments had ratified it the Treaty would translate an emotion deep in the hearts of millions into the practical fact of government and international relation. It would renew the faith of the world in the moral forces of goodwill and patient negotiation, as opposed to the blind forces of suspicion and competitive armament.

It would secure, added the President, the full defence of the United States.—Reuter's American Service.

British Consideration.

London, July 22.

Consent to the ratification of the London Naval Treaty was given by the United States Senate yesterday by fifty-eight votes to four, and the Prime Minister, in the House of Commons, stated to-day that in view of this and other circumstances, it was advisable to proceed at once with the second reading of the Bill to give effect to the Treaty here, rather than allow it to remain over until the Autumn. The present session of Parliament is due to close at the end of the month, but the Prime Minister anticipates that consideration of the Bill on the second reading will be brief.—British Wireless.

been a present to his son. Defendant did not know anything about the wireless. He consulted his wife and was told not to take out a licence until the set had been repaired. He therefore instructed a friend of his to repair it, but it was not repaired. Defendant did not take any further interest in it, hence the delay in taking out the licence.

Fine Imposed.

Asked by the Magistrate to offer an explanation with regard to the tampering with the aerial, defendant said other members of the household had taken the aerial down, and when he had seen this, he had put it up again, because the case had not been concluded.

The Magistrate asked the defendant whether he would call his wife as a witness, but on receiving a reply in the negative, fined the defendant $25.

While several passengers were in a charabanc in Vauxhall Bridge road a sheriff's officer seized it for debt, according to a statement made to the Westminster magistrate when George Alfred Morton, motor driver, of Ashby-road, N., was charged with assaulting William Alfred Parker. A solicitor said that when the officer seized the car Parker was told to get into the driver's seat. Morton opened the engine, tore off the petrol pipe and threatened to smash the windscreen. Parker then got out of the seat and was badly assaulted by Morton. Morton pleaded not guilty and was remanded on bail so that he could be legally represented.

AIRMAN RESCUED
AT SEA.HURRIES TO LONDON FOR A DINNER PARTY.

GOODWINS' CRASH.

After being rescued from the Channel when his machine crashed off Deal, the pilot of a monoplane hurried by air to London to keep a dinner engagement.

There were three occupants of the plane: Mr. Hylton Murray Philipson, of Stobo Castle, Stobo, the pilot, Mr. James Murray Philipson, his brother, and a mechanic.

They left Hendon intending to fly to France and to return easily in the evening.

When about a mile across the Channel, near the North Goodwin lightship, a fog was encountered, and while the pilot was trying to find a way through, engine trouble developed and the aeroplane crashed into the sea.

Fortunately the sea was calm and the three flyers managed to get out of the waterlogged cabin through the roof by using the emergency exit.

The plane was sinking rapidly when Mr. James Murray Philipson remembered that he had left his passport and a gold watch, which he greatly prized, in the cabin. After diving three times he succeeded in recovering both articles.

Trawler to the Rescue.

Soon the machine sank and the three men had to swim, the pilot assisting the mechanic to keep afloat.

In the meantime the Dieppe trawler Syrus was racing to the rescue, having seen the plane fall into the sea. It got alongside and took the airmen on board.

All three drove in a taxi-cab to Sandgate, where the aunt of the two Philipsons lives. Mrs. Philipson provided her nephews' and their companion with hot baths and a change of clothing and also called in a doctor, who found that the pilot was suffering from a slight cut on one of his legs, caused when the machine struck the sea.

Mr. Hylton Murray Philipson and his brother then motored to London so that a dinner engagement might be fulfilled.

Mr. Hylton Murray Philipson is a cousin by marriage of Mrs. Hilton Philipson, formerly Miss Mabel Russell, the actress.

His mother before her marriage was the Hon. Nina Murray, a daughter of the tenth Lord Elibank.

WAR ON INSECT
PESTS.PARASITES BRED IN A LABORATORY.

MEASURES WANTED.

If there were no insects in the British Empire it could support an additional population of 45,000,000. This is the official estimate of the Imperial Bureau of Entomology, which has issued a report on "The Biological Control of Insect and Plant Pests," by Dr. W. R. Thompson, the Superintendent of the Farnham House Laboratory, Slough.

The issue of the report has been arranged to coincide with the first public meeting of the Imperial Entomological Conference, which is making an attempt at co-ordinated hostility to insect pests.

"It is safe to predict," says Dr. Thompson, "that unless special measures are taken to prevent it, losses resulting from pests will increase year by year in all parts of the Empire."

Present efforts are concentrated largely on the discovery of those parasites which prey on the injurious insects and their supply in bulk to the countries affected.

Ingenuous devices invented by entomologists are described in the report. One of these is a "bouncing machine" which distinguishes between healthy eggs and those in which a parasite has laid. The eggs run down a wooden chute and bounce off a piece of tin at the bottom. An egg which has been parasitised has less "bounce," and can be arranged to jump into a different tin from the healthy egg.

Suitable parasites have been sent to Canada to wage war on the wheat stem sawfly, the white fly, and the pine shoot moth, which do incalculable damage annually.

One which attacks the sheep blowfly has been shipped in large quantities to Australia and South Africa. Californian ladybirds have gone to Madras, miniature wasps, which eat the pear slug, to New Zealand, and boll worms, to the Barbados.

About 100,000 specimens have been despatched from the laboratory to different parts of the Empire.

Many problems remain to be solved though in some cases hope is extended that the end is near. The codlin moth, for example, does £3,000,000 worth of damage annually in the United States alone, but it is hoped that in the near future it may be possible to distribute stocks of the most effective parasites, one of which has been bred successfully in the laboratory.

ALPINE FEAT OF LONDON GIRLS.12,045-FT. CLIMB AT THE FIRST ATTEMPT.

Two London business girls and two Cheshire men hold the distinction of having made the first ascent this year of one of the highest of the Swiss mountains—the Blumlisalp.

The four climbers were Miss D. Horne and Miss K. Tarrant, of High Barnet, Mr. E. Byron, of Altrincham, and Mr. A. Smith, of Stockport.

They had intended to spend a quiet rambling holiday at Kandersteg, but circumstances led them to make this difficult climb, although neither of the girls had previously ascended an alpine peak.

Blumlisalp is the highest of the eight peaks forming the summit of the Blumlisalp Mountain mass. It is 12,045 ft. high and one of the most difficult to climb.

"We made the climb quite by accident," Mr. Byron told a reporter.

"We were invited by two German people to climb one of the smaller peaks, but they didn't turn up, and we decided to have a shot at the highest."

"It was a very interesting experience, and might have been dangerous if we had not had such splendid guides."

"The most exciting part of the climb was when we saw an avalanche only a quarter of a mile away. Luckily our guides had seen it and avoided going near the falling snow."

"The whole climb took us eight and a half hours."

The extermination of the dreaded tsetse fly and with it, m'gana (fly sickness) and sleeping sickness, is now well within the bounds of possibility as the result of experiments carried out by Mr. R. H. Harris, in the Umfolosi game reserves in Zululand. Mr. Harris constructed a number of traps which were placed in various parts of the reserve. In one of these traps 2,997 flies were captured in 24 consecutive days, of which 2,516 were females. It is the females of the species Mr. Harris is anxious to destroy. In his report to the Provincial Administration Mr. Harris says he feels the success of the experiments warrants a substantial increase in the traps in the reserve.

CINEMA NOTES.

REAL MOTHER LOVE INSPIRES JESSEL.

George Jessel, whose first starring Fox Movietone all talking drama will be heard and seen at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday, has always been inspired in his work by his mother a mother who strove to make her boy the ideal of her dream.

Mrs. Jessel has been the guiding spirit of her son's career since he first started on the vaudeville stage and many times when it seemed as if he could not reach his goal the mother spirit flashed before him and he struggled harder than ever.

Jessel, all during his vaudeville career, played sketches with a mother theme.

The boy's love for his mother is nothing short of an idealized worship and while to-day she is a widow, her son is husband, father and comforter extraordinary to her.

In "Love, Live and Laugh" Jessel is surrounded by an unusually fine cast that includes such outstanding players as Lila Lee, Kenneth MacKenna, David Rollins, Henry Kolker, Marcia Manon and Henry Armetta. William K. Howard directed this all talking Fox Movietone drama, in which George Jessel sings two melodies especially written by L. Wolfe Gilbert and Abel Baer. The songs are "A Song of Margharita" and "Two Little Baby Arms."

"Abie's Irish Rose."

Charles ("Buddy") Rogers whose rise to movie fame has been nothing short of sensational has one of the featured roles in the picturized version of Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" now showing at the Central theatre. Rogers has been in motion pictures in a little over two years, but in that short space of time has been heralded by all movie fans. Paramount was quick to realize the popularity of the young player and recently elevated him to complete stardom. Perhaps no other player in motion pictures to-day has enjoyed the record Rogers has made for himself.

Picked from hundreds of candidates by a committee appointed by the motion picture concern some two years ago for the purpose of finding a typical American youth, Rogers was given an opportunity to attend the Paramount Pictures School at New York City. He was given the leading role in a graduation picture in which all of the members took part.

Soon after this production was released Rogers was given a role in support of Clara Bow. Then came the master epic of the air, "Wings." Rogers was immediately acclaimed for his work in this film and his fan mail leaped with bounds until now he receives more fan mail than any other male star in Hollywood, a sure sign that Rogers is held in the highest esteem by the public.

His first role in "Abie's Irish Rose" will serve to increase his popularity. He portrays the role of Abie, the Jewish boy who falls in love with Rosemary, the little Irish lass. The role of Rosemary is filled by Nancy Carroll, looked upon as a "comer" among those who know screen possibilities of a player. Nancy is real Irish too, having been born of Irish parents on Tenth avenue in New York City. She has red hair, blue eyes, and speaks with a tinge of brogue.

"The Virginian."

Audiences at the Central Theatre will have the opportunity tomorrow to learn whether preview critics were correct when they said that "The Virginian" is "The Covered Wagon" of all talking pictures. The Owen Wister classic of pioneer days on the Western cattle ranges has all the earmarks of an epic film. The manner in which it was acclaimed by previewers indicates that it will go high on the list of really greats.

The film, based on the novel by the same name, which brought Owen Wister quick fame in the '80's, and which has since been termed the greatest American romance, enjoys the distinction of being the first all-outdoors play to be recorded on the audible films.

But its greatest claim to all-time honors lies in its general perfection in every department. There is a great cast—Gary Cooper, Walter Huston, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Eugene Pallette, Chester Conklin, E. H. Calvert, Helen Ware—a superb group of artists who have proved their worth on the stage and the talking screen. There is masterful direction, by Victor Fleming, a genius in his art. There are gorgeous settings—the real out-of-doors of the pinelined cattle ranges of the old West. There is tense drama, rich romance, rollicking humour—and the theme is one which deals with an exact chapter in American pioneer days.

"The Legion of the Condemned." There have been many aviation pictures set to the screen since the Armistice was signed, but never until now has there been an aviation picture in which such an imposing cast of war birds appear, as in the "The Legion of the Condemned," showing at the Majestic Theatre to-day. Not only does this picture of the air boast of its authentic cast, but the production itself was directed by a former member of the Lafayette Flying Corps, William Wellman.

Heading the list of aviators who fought in the air during the War is Captain Sterling Campbell, one of the five ranking aces of the Royal Air Force, who has many planes to his credit. On the enemy side is Lieutenant Rudolph Schad, a member of the famous Richthofen's Circus, No. 15, who has twelve Allied planes to his credit. Others who saw service, and who have more than five planes each to their credit are: Ted Parsons, of Detroit, who flew for five years with the French; Ross Cook, Robert de Couedic, Tom Watton and Al Johnston.

Director William Wellman, who also directed "Wings" for Paramount, was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille during the War. J. Monk Saunders, the author of the story, and who also wrote "Wings" was an instructor of aviation.

WELCH TEAM FROM SINGAPORE.

BEATEN AT WATER-POLO BY SOMERSET FIRSTS.

At the V.R.C. yesterday afternoon the Somerset Light Infantry water polo team played the Welch Regiment from Singapore, and a fairly even game was seen though the result indicated that the Somersets were superior.

During the first half there was little to choose between the two teams although the Somersets were two goals in the lead when the whistle blew. The first goal came from Howard, who swimming up from his own half with the ball finished by pushing it weakly into the net. The second was an almost unstopable shot by Earley who finding himself unmarked gave the goalkeeper no chance from some distance out.

After the interval the Welch changed their tactics and tried a number of long shots but Skinner in goal was not beaten. From a free throw the Welch centre forward, who was unmarked, took a first time shot and flashed the ball into the net to reduce the Somersets' lead. Mackenzie (Somersets) who had gone up centre forward replied by giving Earley another chance to score and a minute later the same player tried a backhand dip which was successful. Further attempts by the Welch from long ranges failed and the Somersets finished up winners of an interesting game by four goals to one.

It is probable that the visitors will be seen again before they return to Singapore and as they are under a disadvantage in their first appearance in strange waters they should do better.

DANCING JUDITH

by CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Judy Grant, beautiful artist's model, shares her Greenwich Village apartment with Clara Steyne, known as "Chummy", a beautiful girl who lost her memory seven years ago when her lover, Alan Steyne, abruptly disappeared. Steyne comes back on the scene and Judy arranges a meeting with Chummy, but Chummy fails utterly to recognize her former lover. Steyne, meanwhile, tells Judy that he no longer loves Chummy; instead he falls frantically on Judy, and finally kisses her and declares that he loves her. Judy spurns him, however, and refuses to let him help her, provide medical care for Chummy, whose mental condition is growing worse. Judy goes to pose for Vincent Stornaway, a wealthy portrait painter, at whose house she meets Bruce Gideon, a singularly ugly financier, who becomes smitten with her, whose advances she rebuffs. She returns home to find Chummy radiant with happiness. Chummy tells her that she had dreamed that Alan had returned.

CHAPTER VII.

It was a miracle. Judy could hardly believe her eyes or her ears. Chummy had mentioned Alan Steyne's name. She had spoken it for the first time since Judy had known her.

Moreover, there was a difference in her face. Something had come into it that Judy had never seen—a brightness, a shining beauty, which made it look in its frail pallor as if it were illumined by a flame from within.

Judy could only marvel as she hung over the bed. Chummy's memory had come back! This illness had been a blessing in disguise.

Judy was beside herself with excitement. Only the instinct of her loyal little heart made her say and do the right thing. She might have made irremediable mistakes in those first moments; but she just listened to Chummy's voice, with that note in it—the tender note of the woman talking about the man she loves.

"You never knew Alan, did you, Judy? It is funny I should have dreamed about him just now. Something queer must have happened to me. I seem to have forgotten a lot of things. He went away long ago—I think it was long ago. We were awfully poor, you know. He was wonderfully clever, but he never got on; and he couldn't wait, you see. It's awfully hard waiting—when you're a man."

"Oh, Chummy, and this this was your own particular boy?" asked Judy in a trembling voice.

"I was awfully fond of him, Judy, and—I think the low voice; but I never heard from him. I think I never have forgotten him for quite a time, but just now I had this dream, and it was so clear and real! Alan looked quite different, but it was Alan, and he had come back."

"I expect that means he will, Chummy," said Judy decidedly. "I always thought there was a lot in dreams; but now you go to sleep, or you'll be getting tired. If your young man's coming back, you must be quite well and strong."

Chummy turned on her pillow and looked at her friend.

"Judy, tell me, is there anything the matter with me?" she asked in a voice of utter bewilderment. "I really do feel queer. Do I look any—any different?"

Judy laughed merrily.

"Well, you look prettier than I ever saw you, darling! I call it worth while being ill. Perhaps you had lost your memory a bit—such funny things happen!—and it's coming back to you all of a sudden; but don't worry, whatever you do. Go to sleep now and dream about your Alan again, and I'll make you some tea."

Chummy seemed to be satisfied. She was still very weak, and she fell into a comfortable doze.

Judy went to make the tea over the gas ring in her box in the attic. While the kettle came to a boil, she stood lost in profound thought.

Chummy's memory had come back! A picture rose before Judy's mind of the night when Alan Steyne had really returned—when Chummy had smiled her baby smile at him, and looked at him without recognition, and with complacent vacancy, had called him a handsome boy and a nice boy.

When Chummy was strong again, she would be like everybody else. The next time she saw Alan Steyne she would know him. Judy was overjoyed. No personal consideration would ever disturb her loyalty to her friend.

Alan Steyne was Chummy's property. Now that she would know him, and still loved him, he must prove his faith and marry her at once. Through her forgetfulness, his image had already struggled, though she believed he had seen him only in a dream.

Judy's next thought was to consult Doctor O'Shane. The nurse had come back, and Chummy was settled for the night. Judy saw the doctor in his office. She told him her great news, and he expressed approval of her conduct. Nothing must be hurried, he said. Something had happened during Chummy's illness to break down the blank wall of forgetfulness.

Judy went on to the Cafe Turc-Dan, the long, lean waiter with the face of a Roman emperor and the sunny tenor voice, was the first person to whom she imparted her splendid news.

"Dan, Miss Morley is over so much better. And what do you think?—she's got her memory back again! When you see her again she'll be her old self, just like you and me!"

Bastien Dumont was late in looking in that night. Judy had almost given him up, and she was frowning with the irritation of having to bottle up her feelings—which, after all, Bastien would understand better than anyone else, because he was Chummy's oldest friend among the crowd.

When she told him, she threw it him like a bomb.

"Chummy's got her memory back, Bastien. She dreamed Alan Steyne had come back; and she looks—well, I can't tell you how she looks. I never saw anyone like her! So now, you see, it's going to be all right. They'll meet, and Chummy will know him, and they'll be married and live happily ever after!"

Bastien's eyes kindled as they rested on her eager face. He had been nursing miserable, jealous thoughts about Steyne lately. He had seen Judy with him; he knew that they had been out together the night that Chummy was taken ill. There could be nothing in it, after all. Judy could never talk like this if she had a spark of feeling for Steyne herself.

He expressed his delight, and drank to Chummy's health. Then he said:

"I saw Steyne this afternoon. He is going to Paris."

"To Paris?"

"Yes—some business or other. This old collector he was secretary to left some pictures to the Louvre and the Luxembourg, and there's some dispute that Steyne has to settle."

"It's a good thing," Judy said. "I do want Chummy to be quite well when she sees him again. Of course, he's been inquiring for her, and it would be difficult to have to explain it all. Oh, Bastien, isn't it wonderful?"

"But the young man's face was gloomy."

"You can take enough interest in other people's love affairs," Bastien said. "Oh, Judy, you'll drive me mad!"

"Don't be absurd, Bastien," she answered, with the straight, kind look that she always had for him. "Let me tell you a discovery I've made, old boy. Clara Jenks is crazy about you!"

He gave an impatient exclamation, which caused the girl to continue with a touch of mischief:

"It's perfectly true, Bastien. I tell you that girl's a duck and a brick, and one of the very best; and, mark my words, one day she'll be a star. Anyone who could make me laugh as she did while Chummy lay dying is simply bound to be famous! And yet all the time her heart was bursting with misery, just like mine. Bastien, if Clara loves you as much as I think she does, you're a lucky chap—indeed you are!"

"Judy, stop it!" was all he answered. "You're mocking me."

It was February—a soft day of mist and sudden warmth with just a shimmer of green upon the trees in the parks, as if carelessly brushed on, but by an unerring hand.

Judy stood with Alan Steyne in Chummy's room, which was furnished up as far as their slender resources allowed, and bright with spring flowers, contributed almost blossom by blossom to their joy at Chummy's recovery.

"Chummy's out," Judy said. "She is quite well again, and her memory has come back. I tried to write to tell you in Paris, but it was too difficult. She dreamed about you first, but it must have been in her mind that she had seen you. She—she loves you awfully. O'Shane told me I wasn't to hurry her memory; but I've been telling her that I believe in dreams, and I know she thinks you're coming back."

Steyne looked perplexed and troubled.

"Judy," he said, "it is no good. It's only asking for trouble. It's much better to let her know at once that I never cared for her like that. Judy, you know it's no good!"

Suddenly he stopped. There were footsteps outside. Judy had said that Chummy was out and would not come back until late. She was meeting a relative with whom she had communicated since her recovery. Judy had made the appointment with Alan on purpose to tell him.

The door opened. He gave one terrified look at the figure that entered. It was Chummy—the CONSULS ARRIVE IN YENPINGFU.

EFFORT TO RESCUE MANY MISSIONARIES.

Peking, July 22.

Telegrams received from Mr. John J. Muccio, the United States Consul at Foochow, and Mr. A. J. Martin, the British Consul, announce that they have arrived safely at Yenpingfu and that they are being treated with every courtesy.

[Messrs. Muccio and Martin started in a launch on a hundred mile trip up the Min River to rescue a number of British and American missionaries who were marooned within the area controlled by the rebel leader menacing Foochow. Efforts were being made specially to get in touch with the Misses Nettleton and Harrison who were captured early this month, and for whose release their captors demanded $100,000, under threats that if the money was not paid in a fortnight both ladies would be shot.]

Chummy of the old days, hardly aged by a minute—a wonderful vision, like some delicate statuette wrought in silver and ivory and gold.

She saw him and stood quite still for a moment. Then, with a cry, and straight and swift as an arrow speeding from a bow, she ran into his arms.

ALLEGED ASSAULT ON A MUI TSAI

MOTHER AND SON CHARGED IN COURT.

A mother and son were charged before Mr. R. E. Lindsell, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, with having assaulted a mui tsai in their service. After hearing evidence the Magistrate discharged both defendants, though he added, that he considered the beating inflicted on the girl by the first defendant was over severe.

Mr. Barrow of the S.C.A. prosecuted and Mr. M. K. Lo defended.

Dr. Thomas, the first witness, said that he examined the girl at the request of the S.C.A. on July 16th, at the Government Civil Hospital. He found eleven cane marks on the outer side of the right leg; nine on the left thigh, and one abrasion on the right wrist. He was of the opinion that it was rather a severe beating.

Mui Tsai's Story.

Lai Kin, registered mui tsai, employed by the defendants, said that she had been with the defendants for four years, and during that time she had been ill-treated and beaten on several occasions. On July 16th, the first defendant asked her to telephone to someone, and gave her a beating because she did not divulge the nature of the reply. The second defendant also beat her on the order of his mother. After the beating she (witness) ran to a temple and complained to a district watchman.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, witness denied having returned to the house the previous night at 1 o'clock in the morning. She also denied that the second defendant had admitted her into the house. It was not true that she visited sly brothels, and she did not confide to the other servants that she wanted to become a prostitute. She did not charge the first defendant and knock her down during the beating. When witness was sent to the Po Leung Kuk by the S.C.A. she was not interrogated by any of the directors.

Wong Kai, the district watchman, said that the complainant came and complained to him on July 16th. She had been crying and showed him the mark of a cane on her wrist.

Defendant's Evidence.

Chu Chung-shi, the first defendant, said that she had purchased the girl when she was 11 years old. Since the girl was 15 years of age, witness had been trying to find a husband for her but had not succeeded. Near the house there were many sly brothels and the girl was in the habit of frequenting them. On July 16th, witness looked for the girl in the house, but she was nowhere to be seen, and nobody seemed to know where she had gone. The girl came back about 1 o'clock in the morning and was admitted by defendant's son. When asked where she had been, the girl replied angrily and excitedly.

Knocked Down.

The next morning, witness questioned the girl again, and as she replied insolently witness checked her with a feather duster, whereupon the girl charged her and knocked her down. Witness called out to her son, who came and held the girl back. The girl broke from her son's grasp and rushed at witness saying "I

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Talkies.

[To The Editor of Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—I would like you to publish this letter in your paper, so as to clear any controversy that may exist in Hongkong, regarding the equipments used in the reproduction of sound pictures at the Queen's and Central Theatres.

The equipments, which are Western Electric sound systems, were sent to Hongkong from the Electrical Research Products Inc. factories, U.S.A., and were never used in any other theatre.

They are identical in every respect, and there is no difference whatsoever between them. They are exactly the same size and type and use the same methods of reproducing sound on film and sound on disc.

must have you arrested and imprisoned." After that the girl went into the street, and returned later with the district watchman.

In reply to Mr. Lo, witness said that if it had been her daughter she would have given an even more severe beating. But she had always been patient with the girl, though she was a very disobedient girl. Witness denied that her son had struck the girl.

Cross-examined, witness said that she had written to the girl's mother to come and take her back, but had received a reply that as the living was high the mother could not take the girl back. Witness did not send the girl to the S.C.A. because she was hoping the girl would reform.

Questioned by the Magistrate as to the truth of the telephone story, witness said that there was no truth in it.

The second defendant, Chu Chung, said that being awakened by cries from his mother, he had gone to the second floor, and saw the girl charging his mother with her head down. He separated them. He denied having struck

ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE IN THE GARDENS.

CHINESE FOUND HANGING TO A BEAM.

An attempt by a Chinese to commit suicide in the Botanical Gardens last night was thwarted by the appearance of one of the gardeners, who discovered the man just after he had suspended himself from a beam in the kiosk.

The man tied a handkerchief around his neck which he attached to the beam, from where he hung with his feet clear of the floor. When the gardener discovered him, he was in an unconscious condition, and an Indian constable, who was called to the scene, reported him as dead.

Upon subsequent investigation by a European officer, it was found that the report had been exaggerated, and the man was later taken to the Government Civil Hospital, and detained.

NATIVE BANK IN TROUBLE.

HONGKONG EMBARGO ON MEXICAN DOLLARS.

How a Hongkong native bank, the Messrs. Cheung Kee of Queen's Road Central, which had a consignment of Mexican dollars from Shanghai which arrived in Hongkong shortly after the local authorities announced the embargo on imported Mexican dollars had got into difficulty in landing the silver was related at the meeting of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

It is understood that the officials at the Chinese Chamber negotiated with the authorities and eventually succeeded in relieving the embarrassment of the Cheung Kee Bank.

the girl.

Lo Hing, an amah in the employ of the first defendant, also gave evidence as to the character of the girl, who, she said, had in recent times begun visiting brothels. The girl had confided in her the intention of becoming a prostitute.

The Magistrate dismissed the case, as stated.

MORE RIOTING IN PORT SAID.

MOB ATTEMPTS TO FIRE THE MUNICIPAL STABLES.

POLICE USE ARMS.

Port Said, July 22. Further rioting occurred here this afternoon when a mob attempted to set fire to the municipal stables in the native quarter of the town. The police opened fire with the result that one rioter was killed and eight wounded. Egyptian troop reinforcements are now arriving at Port Said where the trouble is entirely confined to the native quarter.—Reuter.

The Toll at Cairo.

Cairo, July 22.

The casualties in yesterday's rioting here were six dead and 41 wounded by rifle-fire, of whom seven are dangerously injured, while 27 others were wounded and sent to hospital.

Over a thousand arrests have occurred, and include four Ward Committee men.

All is quiet throughout the country to-day.—Reuter.

Serious Port Said Casualties.

Port Said, July 22.

An official return of the casualties here in yesterday's rioting gives two killed and 28 wounded, of whom ten are seriously hurt. Forty-seven police were injured, one seriously.

The situation at present is quiet.—Reuter.

Reinforcements Sent to Suez.

Cairo, July 22.

The authorities emphatically deny a report that Suez is in the hands of a mob.

Reinforcements of seventy men of the Camel Corps left for Suez last night.

Twenty-one rioters and 21 police at Suez were slightly injured with sticks and stones, but there were no casualties from firearms. Forty-three arrests were effected.

All is quiet at Suez at present.—Reuter.

Foreigners Safe.

London, July 22.

No further disturbances are reported from Egypt to-day. The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Arthur Henderson, said in the House of Commons that official information went to show that the situation was well in hand, and the Egyptian Government had themselves indicated that there was no need for special protective measures for foreigners. His Majesty's Government, he added, were fully alive to the obligations of this country under the declaration of 1922 to ensure the protection of foreign lives and interests in Egypt.—British Wireless.

RAIN LATER.

The Royal Observatory reports that a shallow depression is central over North China. The typhoon is about 450 miles S. E. of Hongkong, moving W.N.W. The local forecast is:—Light variable winds freshening considerably from N.E., fine at first, overcast with rain later.

LIFE IN LEPER COLONY.

NOTED PATHOLOGIST INTERVIEWED.

DISEASE CURABLE BY EARLY TREATMENT.

THE REAL DANGER.

In view of the recent questions asked at a Sanitary Board meeting regarding lepers in Hongkong and the question of whether or not the disease is curable, some details of life in the Cullion Leper Colony in the Philippine Islands, given in an interview to a representative of the Straits Times in Singapore by Dr. H. Windon Wade, should be read with interest locally.

Dr. Wade, who is chief pathologist of the leper colony and field secretary of the Leonard Wood Memorial, has been staying in Singapore for a few days.

Viewed from the sea, Dr. Wade said, Cullion looked like the average tropical city. Boats called there and passengers were allowed permits to land. It was only when one came ashore that the distinctiveness in the lay-out of the town was noticed. The houses, shops and stores were nearly all built of thatch. There was the usual complement of grocery stores, clothing shops, bakeries and even goldsmiths.

Largest Leper Colony.

Where the town straggled off into the country there were large plots of agricultural land. Lepers lived on this land, which was cultivated, the surplus produce being given to the Government.

Altogether there are 5,500 lepers in Cullion, which is the largest leper colony in the world. They go about their daily occupation in much the same way as dwellers in normal colonies. There is very little of the despair of seven or eight years ago present now, Dr. Wade stated. People know that a cure is possible and accept their restrictions as part of the treatment.

They eat much the same food as other inhabitants of the Philippines, work and rest with a calmness that was unheard of among lepers a few years ago. The Government gives them food and clothing and finds occupations in the town or on the land for those who can work.

Question of Treatment.

Turning to the question of treatment, Dr. Wade instanced the similarity of the disease to tuberculosis. Tuberculosis, he said, attacked the lung tissues and leprosy attacked the nerve tissues. The bacteria under the microscope were very similar.

A drug was being administered at present. It was known as "Chaulmoogra," an oil from Burma which was modified chemically and injected. The other part of the treatment with regard to regulating the habits of the lepers was similar to the routine at a sanatorium.

Cause of Infection.

Leprosy was contagious, he said, but it sometimes did not break out

KWANGTUNG'S NEW FREE PORT.

HONGKONG GOVERNOR TO SEND REPRESENTATIVE.

OPENING CEREMONY.

Canton, July 22.

It is learned that His Excellency the Governor of Hongkong, Sir William Peel, has been unable to accept the invitation to the opening ceremony of the free port of Tongka Wan on the 3rd August. His Excellency has, however, promised to send a personal representative. No reply has yet been received from His Excellency the Governor of Macao, Senhor Artur Tamagnini de Sousa Barbosa.

The Committee has received 1,061 applications from official organizations in Canton, 1,860 applications from the members of the general public in Canton, and 600 applications from members of the general public in Hongkong, besides numerous applications from the public in Macao and other places, to be present at the ceremony.

The Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow has been appointed official representative of the Chung Shan Port in Hongkong, and Mr. Liu Yuk-lin receives the same appointment in Macao.

State dress and uniforms are to be worn by all officers attending the ceremony. The steamers chartered to take visitors to Chung Shan from Canton will leave here at 5 a.m. on the day of the ceremony. A number of gunboats of the 4th Naval Squadron (Kwangtung Provincial Fleet) will be present at Chung Shan, and ample police and military protection will be afforded to all the visitors.

The Military, Police and Municipal Bands of Canton are being sent to Chung Shan to entertain the visitors on the opening day.—Our Own Correspondent.

for many years after contact with a leper. In most cases continued contact would be needed to cause infection, in fact one would have to live in the same house with a leper. Children, of course, were more susceptible and could easily be infected.

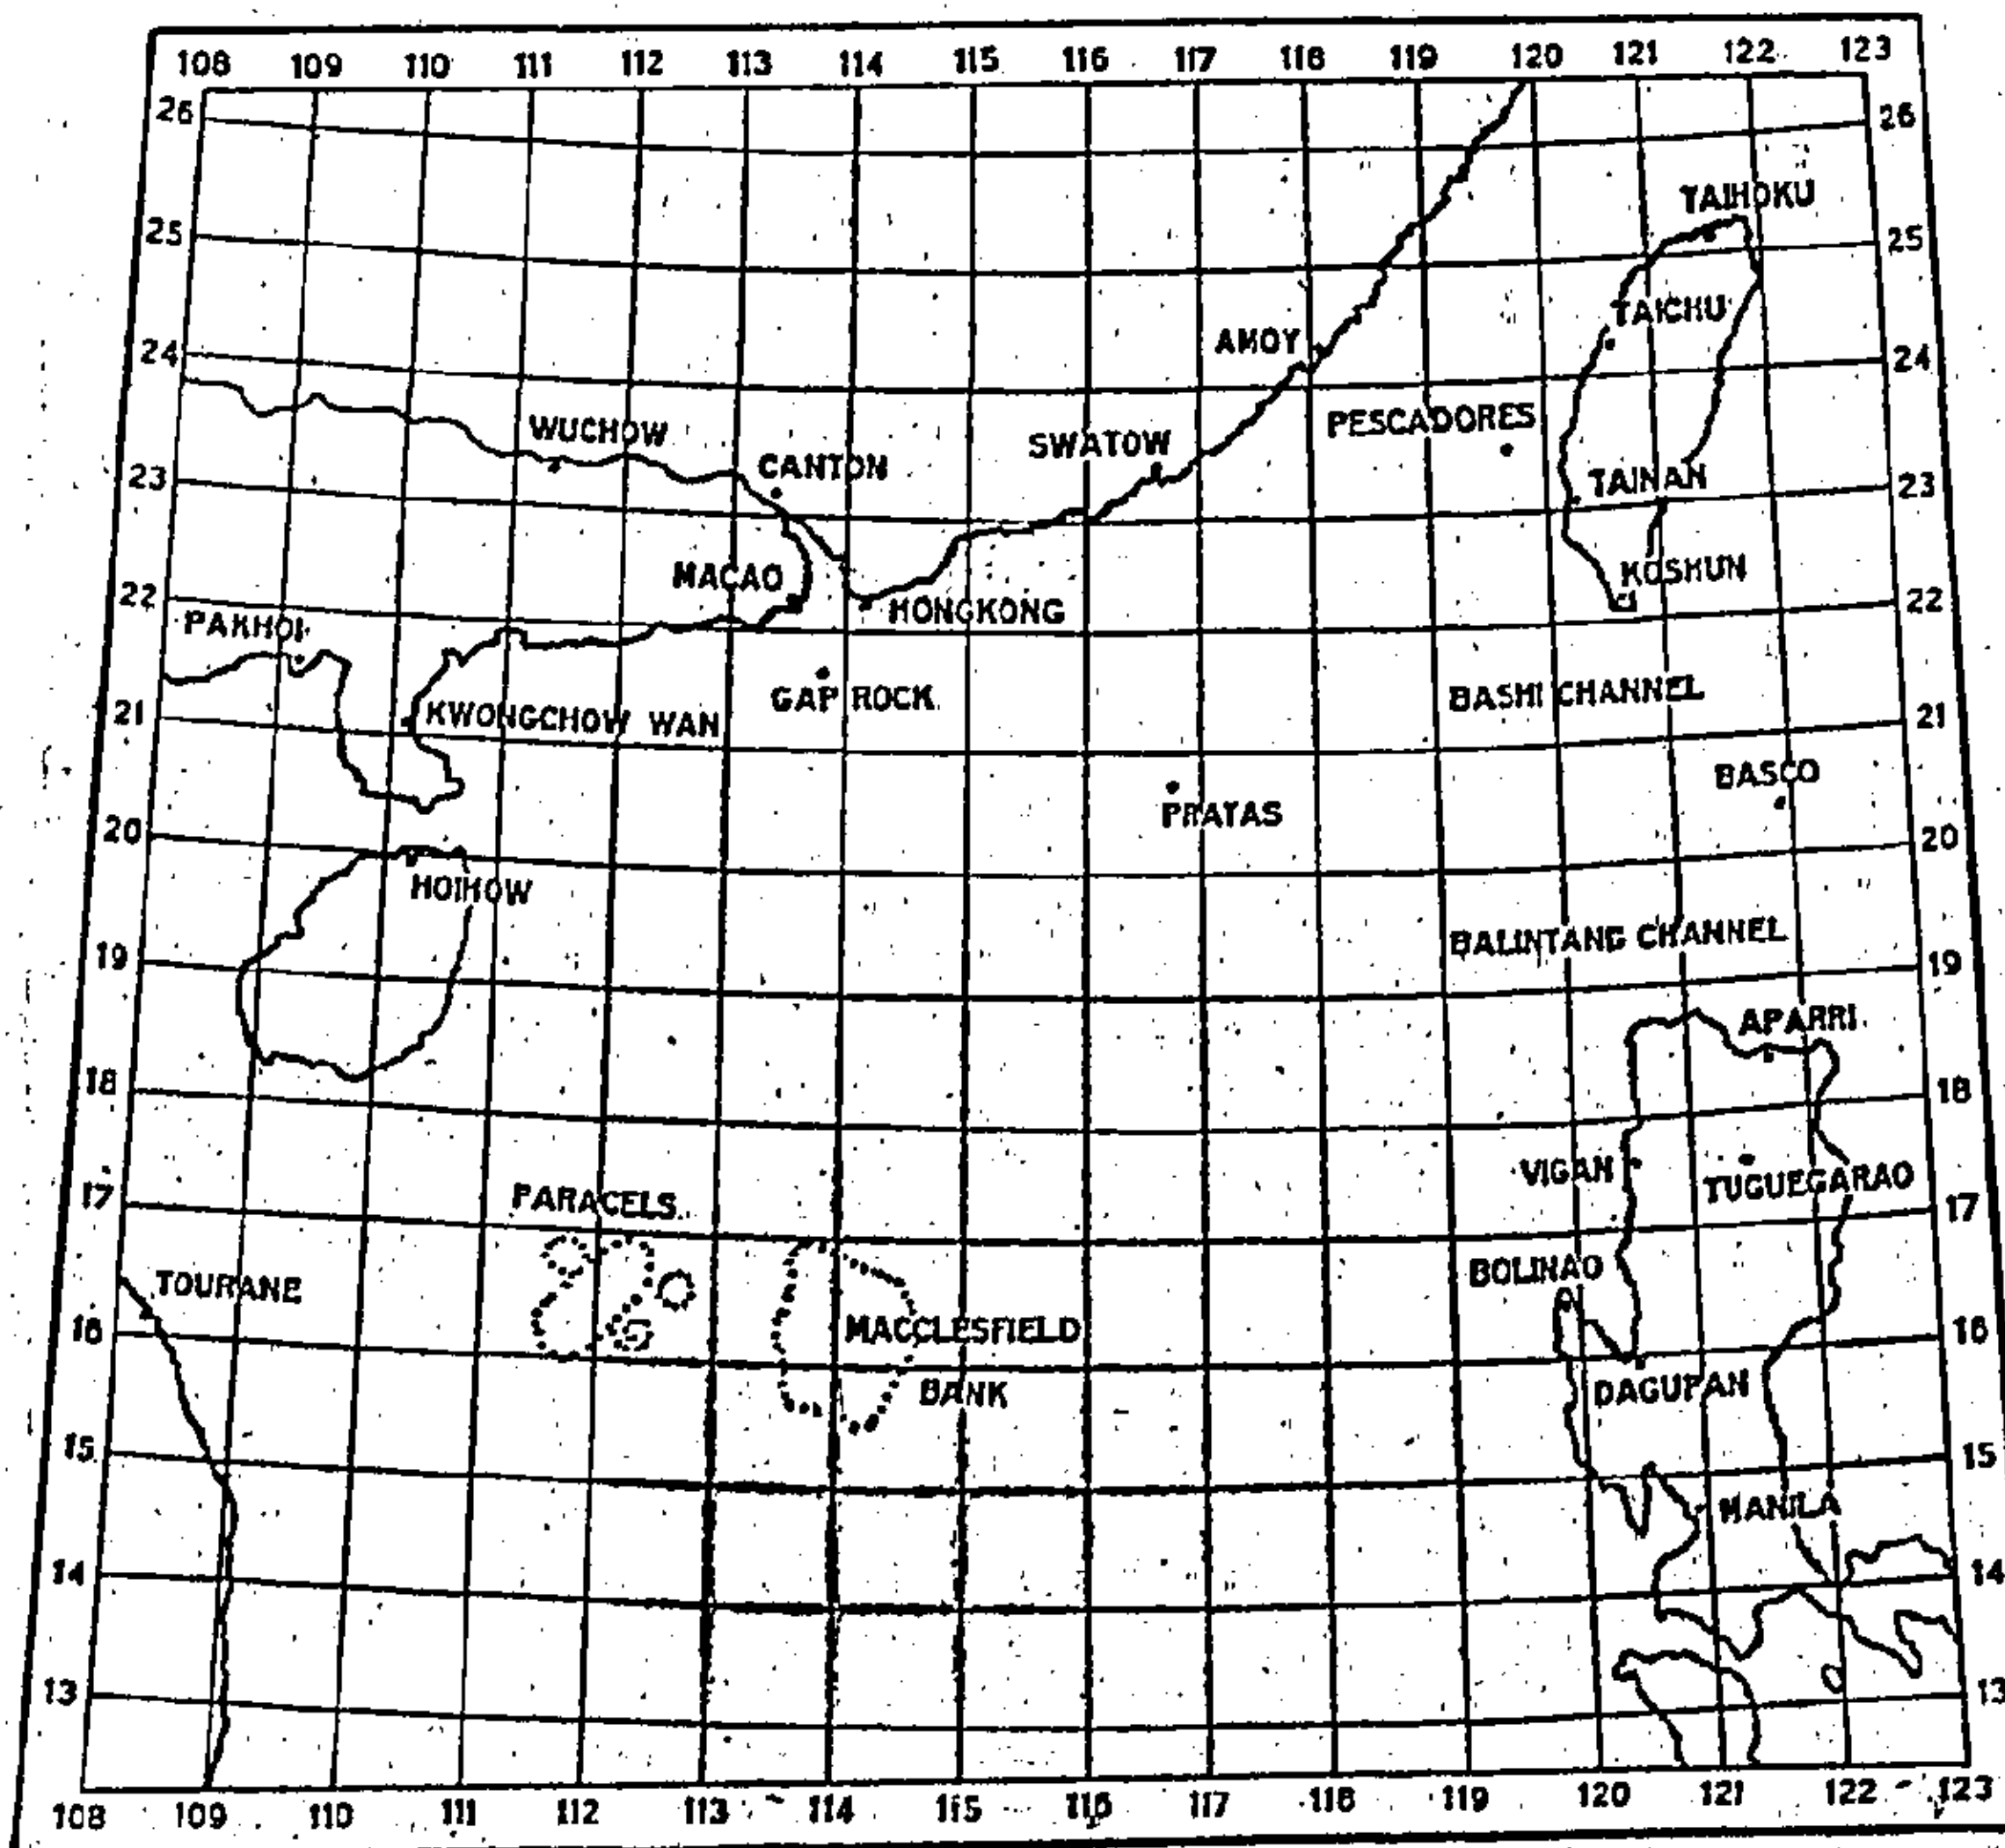

Discussing the difference of opinion between the non-segregation school and the pro-segregationists, Dr. Wade said that the gulf was narrowing. The non-segregation school came about through the difficulties of collecting infected persons together in such wide areas as Africa and India. The theory the non-segregationists held was that people would more readily report to a daily clinic than be entirely separated from their families in a leper colony or village.

Danger to Community.

The dread of this separation kept many cases, concealed, and this was a grave danger to the general community. In its early stages leprosy readily answered to treatment; and the danger of contagion was not very great, but when the advanced stages were reached, segregation was desirable.

Dr. Wade mentioned that a big meeting will be held in the Philippines in January, when all the leading pathologists in the world will be present. They will discuss questions on leprosy which had arisen through reports from various centres and formulate theories for future treatment.
